Childless Nobility. Since 1840 thirty British peers or eldlest sons of peers have married in the United States. Of these thirteen have no children at all, five have no sons and five have only one son. The total number of peers' children with Amerlican mothers is thirty-nine, of whom eighteen are sons. During the same period twenty-three | peers or eldest sons of peers have married in the colonies. Four have no childen, seven have one son, eight have two sons and two have three sons. That is to say, though the number of colonial peeresses is seven less than the number of American peeresses, they have nearly twice as many children, and, while six of them have neglected to present their husbands with heirs, I nineteen Americans are guilty of the

In the lower ranks of the aristocracy the figures are even more startling. Of Americans who are the wives of Englishmen with a courtesy title or baronetcy, there are forty-four. Of these seventeen, or nearly half, have no children and eight have only one child. It therefore comes to this, that since exclusive of knights' wives, has risen to seventy-four, of whom thirty are childless and fourteen have but one In face of these figures, the contention that by means of American brides fresh vigor may be imported into the British aristocracy is merely ridiculous. -New York Tribune.
