influence a dozen dozen roofs the following season; and that dozen dozen roofs will influence a dozen dozen dozen roofs the next season after, and so on.

TVIE don't care to figure it out

VV for more than a dozen seasons ahead; and we could figure it out ourselves if it were not for the fact that after that same old dozen roofs influences a dozen more roofs the next season, that same old dozen roofs does not stop, but is still on the job influencing another dozen dozen roofs the following season and, furthermore, the same old, original roof that we put on in the first place isstill working, and, in fact, every roof keeps on influencing dozen roofs per season and another dozen roofs the next season, and the next, and the next.

Another thing, we do not stop with only one roof the first season-we keep putting on original roofs-and it is safe to say that we will start with a thousand of these roofs the first season, and of course that means a thousand dozen roofs the next sea-30n. For the sake of figures, call it a thousand.

It will enable us to calculate just how rapidly we must increase our facilities in order to supply the demand.
