The scandal in Washington concerning giving advance knowledge about peace proposals to stock-market gamblers rests on light evidence so far, though there probably is reason for concern. It is reported the German ambassador made well out of the stock-fluctuations in prices.

The Germans are still on the aggressive in Romania and advancing steadily.

The Entente Allies are making big demands as they retreat before the victorious Teutons.

The big blow up in New Jersey was a victory for the Germans, whether they planned it or no.

CONCERNING SUFFRAGE

The mother should protect the children in the home. Very true but isn't she equally needed to protect them in the street, especially in New York City where traffic killed 248 last year?

In Oregon—the 1914 presidential vote this year was 260,613, an increase of 90 per cent. over 1912 at which election the women were given the right to vote. Oregon stood pat on her prohibition amendment by a majority of 5261.

The Chicago Herald comments on the fact that the women's clubs in asking for an appropriation for public comfort stations expressly ask that it be small; that there is no need of building in the "grand manner." The Herald says that this is a "demonstration of sane citizenship" and hope the aldermen will accept the suggestion.

The doors of Moscow University will hereafter open as easily to the knock of a woman as a man. This is reported as being the greatest triumph achieved by women in Russia. The next step toward equal opportunity in education is said to be the granting of the same high school education to girls as is now given to boys.

Lady Pennypacker of Texas while president of the Federation of Women's Clubs remained a neutral in the suffrage battle. Now that her official obligations have rolled off her shoulders she is reported as having rolled up her sleeves and gone to work to help women get the vote.

"Hurrah for the West" said Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch when she heard the news to the effect that President Wilson had appointed Mrs. Frances Axtell of Washington to the Federal Employees Compensation Commission, with Jeanette Rankin in the

I recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to anyone suffering from Indigestion."

House of Representatives and Mrs. Axtell on this important commission, the women of the East are going to wake up pretty soon to the fact that they are left behind."

In Connecticut it has been assumed that women did not need the vote to protect them from night work. The chivalry of man had put the law on the statute book. But when the war came and women were needed in the factories to make munition the law went by the board. It only declared that women should not work after ten. So the employers had them stop at ten and begin again at midnight. Then the court decided that the law did not apply to factories anyway. If Connecticut were an equal suffrage state, the law would in all probability get enough starch out into it this winter to stand the strain of use, but as it isn't who can tell what will happen?
