After Many Unsuccessful Attempts by Him and Others, Perry Finally Succeeded in Discovering the North Pole

Faint heart ne'er would have won this crowning achievement of Arctic Exploration. Facing dangers of shipwreck, starvation and freezing, Perry and his crew of brave men at last reached the goal of their desire. One cannot but stand in admiration of such courage and persistency. In order to crown your personal efforts you will need these very qualities. Start saving today that you may reap a reward in the future.

OFFICERS FOUND LOAD OF

Belmont Added to Order Saturday Night Result That Mine Ho Was Relieved of Wet (Wellsville Report)

The story comes from a large quantity of horns was seized by officers in the basement of Belmont, Saturday night. Notorious for some time prior was being dispensed in Belmont, a source is believed that a search of premises would reveal a quantity of supply. Under the direction of Constable Moore Reynolds issued a search and seizure, and at about 9 o'clock, the raid.

A room in the basement of a hotel off the pool room captured a small quantity of wet goods. By actual count there were 706 bottles of beer, 59 sealed cans of apparently good whiskey, 10 pint bottles of a 20 gallon keg of bottles of gin, 8 bottles of rye, a 5 gallon cask of wine, and a 10 gallon cask of wine, each partly full of rum, and some orange bitters and other liquors were boozed enough to stock a regulation hospital. Myron Wallace, proprietor of the Belmont hotel in charge of the raid.

Reynolds order the store on April 20th at which is probable that the liquor is confiscated to the State.

The story comes from the fact that he should have been in face of the decision of the voters must be made. The hotel manager, who is in charge of the hotel, is in the hands of the voters is not any sympathy or.
