WASHINGTON BOMBERS
 Washington, D. C., June 23.—Robert Hoover has as big a job in America as the one he tackled in Belgium. If he is given a free hand by Congress there will be a lot of food speculators who will come to grief. The plan of the Administration and Congress is to give Mr. Hoover the kind of a law he wants, and to put "plenty of teeth" into it. This will make it possible to confiscate food products, and to fix prices that will be fair to the consumer, as well as the dealer.

Because this is the greatest problem connected with our internal affairs, the representative of the Andover News asked for a special statement, and Dr. R. L. Wilbur was designated by Mr. Hoover to prepare a statement. Mr. Wilbur is President of the Stanford University of California, and is temporary head of the Department of Food Conservation of the Food Administration. He says:

"The United States is just coming to a realization of the world's food problem. The unusual and unique conditions associated with the Great World War have had a profound effect upon the production, distribution and consumption of foodstuffs. The world has been linked together in such a way that there was a flow of foodstuffs, particularly grain, to the point where they were most needed. With the changes brought about by placing several millions of men on the battle line and with the submarine effect on shipping, all of this has materially changed, as far as Europe is concerned.

"In America there has always been a surplus of foodstuffs and we have contributed materially to the support of other countries. We have never had to make a particular effort to conserve our food supply or to avoid hunger and starvation by thrift. We now find ourselves the one great source of the surplus food that must reach Europe, if we are to win the war. That surplus will be scanty particularly this year because of the comparative failure of the winter wheat, and it can only be increased by the most conservative use of our supplies and by the most restricted use of food by our European Allies.

"The problem of feeding ourselves and feeding our own army abroad and of feeding our Allies is the most pressing one that is immediately before each and every individual. We are asking the women of the country to be the first to organize themselves for food conservation. We hope to have all of them sign a pledge to follow our directions, which will be simple and few, which will if carried out, have a marked effect upon the food which we can export. It will also contribute materially to getting the prices of foods upon a more satisfactory basis. The war has disturbed the ordinary commercial machinery and prices have gone far beyond the normal. This is the effect of lack of control in this country and the abnormal call for food from other countries.

"If a Food Administration is set up and if food waste is stopped and our food supply is properly conserved, we should be able to stop the rise in prices here and also contribute sufficient for our Allies. 'To save is to serve' is to be the motto of the great group of women and men associated with us as members of the Food Administration. Their aim will be to live wisely, but not too well, to eat freely but to avoid waste, to get vegetables and food products grown near home and to save staples for export.

"I feel confident that the splendid volunteer spirit of service of

The "Funniest" Telephone Ad
 "All the machinery of Government is working for success in the war, and efficient telephone service is essential," reads a big display advertisement in the Washington newspapers, which, in another part, continues: "You can help if, during the business hours of the day, you will restrict the use of the telephone so far as possible, avoid all unnecessary calls and make your talks brief." The local telephone company carries this advertising over its signature. All of a sudden the local telephone service at the Capital is practically doubled, and the company has been staggering under a heavy load that has almost swamped it. Hundreds of new "shello girls" and hundreds of new telephones have been added, all incident to the war. The public has been asked by the telephone company to save their telephone nickels. The advertising is something of a curiosity, as it is perhaps the only one of its kind ever printed asking people to reduce their patronage instead of soliciting more of it.

Every Citizen a "Copper"
 A large sign has appeared at the curb of Washington streets, asking everybody to co-operate with the police, and to report any suspicious circumstances, person or act. Or, in other words, everyone is invited to help find the spies, that are said to be thick and dangerous in the National Capital.

"Regardless of Cost"
 Some of the new men in authority within the Government have gone at their tasks in the spirit of "don't lose a moment; never mind the cost." This is always a very pleasant way of spending public money, and very acceptable to contractors. There has been a tendency to tell this class of buyers to "hold your horses." As a result the contracting departments of the Government are being organized on conservative lines, and members of the Administration are using care to see that purchases are made in a systematic and business-like manner.

Hiram Johnson's Speech
 Senator Johnson delivered an interesting heart-to-heart talk to the newspaper men of Washington recently, in which he said that it had become necessary for Americans to "lay aside their ideals for the time being," and unite behind a common leadership. He added that the fight must be resumed in the United States, for a broader and a more liberal democracy after the war.

And she will be made of wood and ships will be made of steel. Something of a sensation was created when it was made to appear that the price of steel in the contracts might reach $95 a ton, whereas Secretary Daniels of the Navy had let contracts with a maximum price of $65 a ton. But it is not likely that the Government will suffer any, as the Steel Trust is always being watched until it is out of sight.
