THIS CAT DIVES FOR FROGS

How a Farmer's Pet Angora Captures Amphibians in Maine Waters.

Warren Clement of Millvale, while at work in his hayfield, heard a loud splash in a pond nearby, and thinking that perhaps a horse mackerel had got into the sheet of water, noiselessly approached the spot, and was astonished, although he knew that he had one of the brightest cats in Maine, when he saw his pet angora con cat dive from a stump and disappear in the water, only to reappear within a few seconds bearing a frog in its mouth, says the Bangor Commercial.

Depositing the now lifeless frog on the ground, the four-footed con gained the stump again, crouched, another spring, another dive, another swim and another frog.

THOUGHTS TURNED TO HOME.

The story is told of a well-known Broadwayite who had his office under the canopy of a theater and who recently went abroad. He visited Rome and stood under the Capitoline and looked down into the heart of the ancient city.

He saw the ruins of the once mighty forum gleaming coldly white at his feet under the clear Italian moon. There were visions to stir a thousand memories--memories of triumphant, gorgeous Caesars, stately marble temples, silver-spoken orators, and rich-voiced poets.

After watching the scene for about a half-hour, he grew restless, and then, turning to a friend, sighed and said: "Gee, I wonder what the fellows are doing on Broadway to-night."
