WHITE CROSS WORK FOR MEN IN KHAKI TENTS

MISS ADELLA POTTER

places and wholesome diversions for the men in the scattered khaki tents that are stationed alongside the thousand and one bridges, trestles and tunnels in our State.

"The suffragists are trying to get in touch with all women who are near these scattered tents, and asking them to extend the hospitality of their homes, their porches, and their churches to these men."

Thanks for Census Work

Mrs. Norman deR. Whitehouse, chairman of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party, is in receipt of a letter from Capt. G. G. Henry, director of state military census, written but a few days before his sudden death.

In the course of the letter, Captain Henry said: "I desire to express to you the official thanks of the Census Bureau, as well as my personal appreciation of the manner in which the Woman Suffrage Party has aided in the taking of our military census. The highly competent and skillful way in which the women have responded to the demands made upon them, as well as their tireless energy and enthusiasm, is very stimulating and proves that the country possesses in its women a second line of defense of great capacity and resourcefulness."

Sign Boards on the Up-road

By Hamilton B. Williams

Comrade, the mystery of human affinities is utterly beyond our mental reach. We must have spiritual beings deeper than consciousness that cry to each other in language never formed by the poor art of man. The Great Adventure will be the liberty of being ourselves!

If we should give back that which the Weaver has thrust into the warp of life, each to other, we should be startled at the barren warp that would be left. We, too, are closer than breathing and though we do not know how souls enter the corridors of our consciousness, they do enter and abide in the central shrines.

Of every passer-by we receive and we give to him.

Shall we say it is impossible for the Great Spirit to enter our houses?

He, like ourselves, enters where welcome waits.

We are very sure that our Father is Friend God because the seeking heart finds the treasure that must be heavenly inasmuch as the worldlings with all their quests of joy never find it. They find the worldlings, that they seek even as the souls that keep their hungers for righteousness find that.

Seeing that God is a Friend, He will, in the fashion of friends, want us to have the quality of life that is highest and best. So He gives us love and peace and joy and the many precious treasures of His giving.

One may know his human friends by the fact that our friends seek our good. It is even so with Friend God. The best of life that is highest and best, so He gives us love and peace and joy and the many precious treasures of His giving.

Life turns out to be a matter of "keeping house" in the many relations of men and women.

The Almighty made us humans a Temple for His abiding, and He will come and abide with us when He finds Love's lantern of the door.
