No student can well afford to miss a single recitation. No amount of conscientious application can ever entirely make up the work lost. In cases which cannot be prevented, we simply have to do the best we can and hope that the work lost will be reduced to the minimum. Now we are faced by unusual conditions. Farmers tell us that it has been almost impossible for them to secure help in gathering in crops. As a result quite a few of our boys are out of school at this time. If these boys are earnestly doing their duty, we feel that the sacrifices they are making are justified. But let us not forget that this loss now means even a more strenuous effort on the part of both students and teachers in overcoming the increasing handicap of continued absence.

As usual, the world series aroused quite a bit of interest in the school. As far as we could judge, sentiment seemed about evenly divided between the two contending teams. One young man was heard to express the hope that next spring's High School team would be as good as either New York or Chicago, and that was said before the fifth game was played.

AUTO RUNS DOWN RIG

I H. Skellie, of Wellsville, was run down by an automobile Friday evening, on the state road below Chas. Lynch's. Mr. Skellie was driving two horses hitched to a covered buggy. He claims he was well to the right of the road and carried a bright tail light. He did not hear the car until the shock came hurling him to the cement road bed. How he escaped serious injury is a mystery. The carriage was shattered to splinters, the team breaking loose dashed down the road where they were discovered by Earl Goodrich who brought them to the Lynch barns where it was found necessary to kill one of them at once as an act of mercy.

The party in the automobile stopped just long enough to back his car out of the wreck then steamed away, leaving Mr. Skellie to get out of his trouble as best he could. The auto was being driven without lights and after the accident was to say the least inexcusable.

STRANGE DISAPPEARANCE

Ed Burbank, who at one time worked for Ray Waffler, but for the past year has been working on a farm near Scio, disappeared a week ago and searching parties dragged the river and searched the woods for him. He was finally located in Andover walking the streets with a loaf of bread under one arm and a package of cheese under the other. He could give no account of how he got there or why he went. — Angelica Advocate.
