DEMCORACY AND LEADERSHIP

By Rey. V. L. Eggloston We note a tendency in some parters to criticize that portion the House of Representatives ty supporting the Pesidem in the conduct of the war, as being in independence. The best answer to such criticism is to point to the reliabilities of lendership some Senators are making of the many people have rather eride ideas of lendership among democratic peoples. Somy the some assistant decreases the men chosen to represent the people less. The praises and paralyzes.

times the same feeling, prevails toward those who are regarded as the demand of the man demand of the man of the m pendence, and as being mere con-pormists who trim their sails to the winds of popular opinion with aut regard to the merits of the ssues which may arise from time

Now we do not question the justice of the charge that some teaders in both the political and religious sphere are lacking in independence and courage There are occasions when this is only no manifest. Any man who is so timid that he never has an opinion of his own is until for too manifest. eadership anywhere. At the sam time the man who pursues a rad-real course in the opposite direction is in danger of doing a much harm of another kind-becoming a leader a man not become a dictator and ough not to attempt to become a rev ofutionist. If he feels that the situation calls for revolution and his moral sease impels him to break radically, with the existing order he ought to say so frankly and become a free lance.
