

Is My Money Safe?

That is the first thing we think of. The Andover State Bank is under the direct supervision of the Banking Department of the State of New York, whose laws are considered the most strict of any State in the Union. Twice a year inspectors come here—able, trained men. Four times a year we are required to make sworn statements to the Banking Department.

BUSINESS NOT AN USUAL

call went out to the country. "Keep Business as Usual" is that thing you desire that the army bears would have a representation upon the industries of the country and cause business to stop close to the shore. Or, stimulate that might have been the result, but in the present instance the average opposite has been the case.

Instead of curtailing business in any direction the war has given such a stimulus to business in all lines that the American people to-day are more prosperous than at any time in their history, and this in the face of the huge sum they have been called upon to contribute to the various war activities.

Now the slogan is not business as usual, but business NOT as usual—greater than usual, with more vim and vigor than we have ever before put into it. We are called upon to make every minute and hour of our days to count. The manufacturer is called upon to speed up production; the farmer is urged to multiply the yield of his acres. Every mill and factory and shop in the land is urged to give his best efforts to swell the volume of business—because only by keeping the volume up to the highest possible mark can we be enabled to respond to the tremendous demands that are being made upon the resources of the country.

We have been accustomed to boast of the immense natural and undeveloped resources of the country. The time has come when these resources must be developed. An unopened coal mine must be opened, and its treasures thrown on the market. Mineral deposits must be developed and their contents given to swell the total of materials. Valuable tract of timber that are needed for manufactures must be laid under the axe and the saw. The resources of the country must be brought into use.

While prices of all commodities are high, the country has money—millions and billions of it. Almost any kind of workman can command a decent salary, and good workmen are in demand at wages never before heard of.

But in order that this may continue, all must work and earn and spend. The purse strings must not be closed on the dollar that is in hand, but it must be spent freely that a crop of dollars may be the result. What if raw materials are high? The world is crying for the finished product at figures even higher. The demand in all lines, is supplies, supplies and more supplies. There is no limit to the demand except the capacity of the country.

Let the order be: "Full speed ahead, till the war is won!"

The blanks for the 1918 agricultural census have been distributed by H. K. Crofoot, the county census director, to the school throughout the county. During the next few days every farmer or farm operator will be visited by the school children for his or her census report.

Depositors in the bank of the Baldwin Banking company of Addison, which closed its doors 20 years ago, who long ago gave up hope of ever realizing anything further on their claims, will receive 30 per cent. dividend on the amounts of their deposits in the defunct institution.

There is a growing scarcity of teachers in the vicinity of Friendship. As the cost of everything from amusements to board has greatly increased, the farmers are unwilling to submit to any increase in school taxes. As a result, teachers are beginning to seek more remunerative employments.

Charles B. Barnes, state employment director at Albany, said there is no labor shortage and that there will not be any until the next draft of the enlistees. He pointed out that while there is an unmet demand for some workers, there is a surplus of others. There is a special need of highly trained men.
