Mr. and Mrs. Jas. H. McCormick, of Wheeler Hill, were in Greenwood Monday.

Peace at any price results are shown in the conditions brought upon Russia by the Bolsheviks. They listened to the peace propaganda of German agents and laid down their arms and fell an easy prey to the designing Huns. Their country is overrun by the Germans and about to be dismembered, their war munitions confiscated, their stores of food, which were barely sufficient for their own use, to be taken over to feed their enemy, their country facing a big indemnity to Germany and their reduction from the position of a first class power to a vassal of Germany.

The results of pacifism in Russia should prove a lesson to any of our citizens who think peace can be secured from a land-grabbing, military autocracy by laying down our arms, closing our munition factories and holding out an olive branch to a would-be conqueror. We can have nothing to say as to the terms of peace until we are in a position to dictate them.

W. H. Greenhow, the veteran editor of the Evening Tribune-Times, died suddenly at Miami, Florida, last week and his remains were brought to Hornell for burial. The funeral was held at the residence of D. Woolver in that city yesterday.

By the death of Mr. Greenhow Hornell loses one of its most public-spirited citizens who, during his long residence there, had labored incessantly for its advancement. He stood firmly for whatever he believed to be right and his labors have left their record on his home city.

Mr. Greenhow had occupied many positions of trust all of which he graced by work. He was a successful journalist and had made the Evening Tribune-Times a recognized power throughout the state.

George White, of Rock Creek, was in our city Wednesday.

Mrs. Wm. Harkerider, of West Union, was in Greenwood Wednesday.

Dr. S. H. Bennett, of Little Valley, who has been here for a few days, returned to his home Tuesday.

James Johnson, the popular merchant of Rexville, was on our streets Wednesday.

Misses Ethel Ransen, Blanche Farrar and Constance Rouse were in Hornell Saturday.

Wm. J. Redmond, of West Greenwood, was a visitor in this city Wednesday.

Mrs. Marie Brownell, of East Greenwood, was a city visitor today.

The ladies gave a tureen supper Friday evening of this week.

Live calves are being shipped to market today. The business of shipping calves alive should be made impossible by law.

Clinton Daley, of Wheeler Hill, was in town Wednesday.

The Japanese are ready to take care of eastern Russia if the Entente but says the word. It looks like its future lies either with Japan or Germany.

Our troops had quite a lively scrap with the enemy in France the other day and were the victors.

J. K. Miller, of West Greenwood, was a welcome visitor in town Wednesday.

Rev. Father Casey, of Rexville, was a visitor in our city Tuesday.

John O'Hagan, of West Union, was in our city Wednesday.

The Ladies Aid give a tureen supper at the home of Miss Beatrix Floyd Sherman was a tureen supper Friday evening.

Greenwood visitor Tuesday.

AGRICULTURE

Conservation saves the nation. Conserves and be conserved.

Raisins or dates cooked with cereals are likely to make them more attractive to children, and will help to save sugar.

Do you know the United States bureau of mines, Washington, D. C., will send free pamphlets on economical house heating. It may pay you to send for it in these days of fuel shortage.

Spread lime and manure now. Labor will be scarce next spring, and with this work out of the way you can put in more acres when planting time comes.

Order seeds as soon as possible, if your order isn't already in. This will help the seedman meet your needs and give you the best that he has. Seed purchased at planting represents what is left, and you may have to take poor stuff or go without.

Stick to tried and true varieties of vegetables this season. Seeds are scarce. Don't pay good money for fancy stuff of doubtful productivity.

To watch the Want Ads in "know values" in real estate.

What kind of foods should be served at a conservation supper? A conservation supper gives an unusual opportunity to show that the new war time foods can be used in cheap, well-balanced, and tempting menus. Dishes should be served in which the sugar is replaced by honey or syrup. Corn and potatoes could replace wheat, and meat substitutes should be used as the main dish. Vegetable or Clam Chowder (This may be omitted). Cafrot or Cheese Loaf. Baked Potatoes. Relish: Tomato Pickle or Sour Apple Sauce. Corn Bread. Ice Cream or Cream Tapioca, or Baked Apple (sweetened with honey) (served without cane sugar).

Is sugar going to be so scarce next summer that we will not be able to get enough to do our canning and preserving? Housewives are assured of sugar for their canning and preserving next season according to a communication received by Federal Food Administrator, Charles E. Freeman, from the U. S. Food Administration in Washington. The administration states that women who preserve and can fruits in the home, as well as commercial canners, will be allowed a full allotment of sugar for this purpose. To use sugar in this form is to conserve it.

On the day that your store is the best advertised store in town life ought to have a very rosy look to you.
