 The milk question stays unsettled. Only the farmers seem to be getting the small end of the deal in all ways. To be called on for increased production and then refused a market for the produce and prices below the cost of production seems very unfair if food is expected to win the war. The higher powers are certainly taking a strange way to win it.

THE SEASON FOR NEW BUGS
 Every house likes to change the looks of the rooms at this time of the year, and no other thing will do more for the rejuvenation of the whole home than a new rug. Owing to the stringent market conditions it will be foresighted and wise to take advantage of the very reasonable prices that now prevail on Rugs and all other floor coverings at our store.
