WAR CABINETS

Washington, D. C., March 30.

A good deal has been said about the advisability of a "war cabinet" and President Wilson has been emphatic in his disapproval of the kind of a group that Congress would have him select. On the other hand the President is choosing his own aides for laying out war plans. For instance, one day this week the following men were invited to the White House at one of the conferences: Secretary McAdoo, Food Administrator Hoover, Fuel Administrator Garfield, Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board, Secretary Daniels, Chairman Baruch of the War Industries Board and Chairman McCormick of the War Trade Board. Groups of leaders like these are frequently consulted at the White House and the President is known to maintain a watchful supervision over what every one of them does. The President has his "war cabinet" all right, even tho' it does not happen to go by that name.

Political Divisions

In the legislation before Congress there has been little in the way of division along political lines; but that party lines are tightening is shown by the amount of criticism of the war preparations in Congress, particularly in the Senate. Senators Lodge and Poindexter have been unusually severe in their denunciation of what has been going on—or rather what they claim has not "been going on." The Wisconsin Senatorial election has likewise served to make political issues, and it is plain from the line-up in the interest of the Democratic and Republican candidates, and the work from national headquarters that was done for Messrs. Davies and Lemroot that it takes more than a war to convince either a Democrat or a Republican that they are not the "real thing." There appears to be a getting-together of the different elements in both parties, and organizations will vie with each other in proving that they are more patriotic and loyal than their opponents. The voters who feel that because they are a long ways from the Capital that they are not fully informed with reference to everything connected with the war, need only be patient as the political spellbinders that will engage in the congressional campaigns this summer will tell them all there is to tell—and maybe more.

Does Advertising Pay?

The Federal Trade Commission has been carrying on exhaustive investigations into all these features of merchandising and distribution during the past two or three years and as their findings and conclusions will be very interesting as they appear, the Government may reasonably be expected to find that Advertising does pay. William H. Ingersoll directs the sales organization and makes the plans for selling the Ingersoll watch, and it needs no argument to convince the public that he is getting away with the job. Mr. Ingersoll has pointed out that the expense of distributing goods is about double the cost of making them, and an illustration of this is found in the fact that you pay for your potatoes about three times what it costs to raise them. Problems in distribution have been successfully worked out to the benefit of the consumer, as has been demonstrated in many ways during the past few months. Coal at the mines is cheap enough, but when it gets to the consumer's cellar it has reached an expensive figure. And the men who raise cattle and those who eat beef have nothing to say about the amount produced or the price set. With 30,000 wholesale houses, with 200,000 traveling salesmen, and 1,250,000 retail stores in the United States, besides 1,200 department stores, and several thousand "chain stores" what reason is there to expect other than "the high cost of living?" Somebody has to pay for all this service.

ALL TIKED-OUT

Hundreds More in Andover in the Same Plight

Fired all the time; Weary and worn out night and day. Back aches, heart aches, Your kidneys are probably weakened. You should help them at their own expense. Let one who knows tell you how. Mrs. P. J. Doherty, W. Center St., Andover, says: "A cold, which settled in my kidneys, brought on an attack of kidney complaint. I was in constant misery from a heavy dull pain in my kidneys and across my loins. I had a dull pain in my head and I was all tired out, too. One of the family told me about Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a supply. Two boxes of Doan's gave me wonderful relief and did me lots of good."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Doherty had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

RED CROSS CARES FOR OUR TROOPS HELD BY ENEMY

Each American, Captured by Foe, Will Get Three 10-Pound Packages of Food Every Two Weeks.

Parents who have thought of prison life in Germany as perhaps the worst experience that could befall their sons in the American army will be reassured in knowing that the American Red Cross provides a service to supply prisoners with food. This is further proof of the great value of this organization. The plan, briefly, is this: The American Red Cross Committee stationed in Berne, Switzerland, will send each American prisoner three ten-pound packages of food every two weeks. Already enough supplies are in Switzerland or on their way there to care for 10,000 American prisoners for a period of six months.

Naturally General Pershing does not intend to let the Germans capture that many American soldiers, but the Red Cross is measuring the possibilities by what has happened to the French and English in gigantic engagements when both sides lost heavily. Expert Dietitians on the Job. This Red Cross bureau will be the sole agency licensed by the War Trade Board to transmit money to American and allied prisoners in Germany. The German government never yet has had occasion to doubt the good faith of the American Red Cross, so that its relief plans are certain of execution.

Stories about the starvation of prisoners in Germany have been printed so frequently in this country that many parents will consider the Red Cross plan worth all the money they have contributed to it if it did not attempt any other form of war relief work. The kind and amount of food to be sent every two weeks to each American prisoner will be determined by expert dietitians. General Pershing and other high officers consider such work by the Red Cross a vital factor in winning the war. It makes all the difference in the world how a soldier feels. When a whole army becomes depressed disaster follows.

RED CROSS ORGANIZES FIRST HOTEL AUXILIARY

The first Red Cross Hotel Auxiliary organized in the East has established headquarters in the Biltmore Hotel, New York city, under the name of the Biltmore Auxiliary Surgical Committee. It will operate under the direction of the New York County Chapter. Spacious Red Cross workrooms have been provided and equipped by the hotel management. Announcement of the formation of the auxiliary is placed in the box of every guest in the hotel. The number of volunteer workers is daily increasing.

The soldiers vote controlled the election. Julius Verne had a monopoly on the submarine.
