THE CONSTITUTION

As the editor writes this we remember that to-day is the day, Sept. 17th, that we are all supposed to study the Constitution of the United States. . How many of us have so done? Governor Smith is to be congratulated upon his. effort to have the people of New York State give a thot once again to the document that has really done more for the world than has any other, unless it be the Bible. The founders of our nation executed a masterpiece in that old Constitution. It has guided our country and our people, and they built upon a firm foundation when they built upon the Constitution, which they made.

The United States is the best country on earth. It is the most democratic country in the world.

We are the wealthiest people on the face of the globe. We are the healthiest and most happy people, to day that the sun shines on.

All beause of the foresight and wisdom of these forebearers of ours in choosing right principles to build upon.

They built this nation on the principle of justice, democracy and unselfishness. We need to-day to take a little that to the future. Are we still -standing on that old platform? --Are we the honest, unselfish, hard-working, God-fearing, liberty-loving people our forefathers were? From the best information we can obtain, and from a daily perusal of the press of this nation, it looks to the writer just as the we were wandering from the "straight and narrow" ways the founders of this great republic set for us to walk on. They wisely planned for the future a program of unselfishness; they tolerated no class, no low, no rich, and no poor. Every man stood upon his own record and was not allowed to interfere for personal gain with the rights of his fellowmen.

The preamble to the Constitution reads something like this:

"We, the people of the United States, in order to torm a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our prosterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

These were wise words. But, are we of the same mind to-day? Everywhere we hear and read of unrest, strikes, lockouts, riots, extortion, exorbitant prices, profiteering, anarchy and Bolshevism.

Everybody seems bound and determined to gull everyone with whom he comes in contact in a business way, careing nothing for the It is clear as daylight that such a state of affairs could not exist in this enlightened country if it were not for the fact that abnormal demands from the European countries which are not now producing have created a wave of unprecedented prosperity, and this in turn has brought in its wake extravagance of a most spectacular kind. This extravagance, curiously enough, is most pronounced among the working people. Higher and still higher wages, which have resulted from repeated demands on the part of the newer school of labor leaders have created an atmosphere of profligacy and absolute disregard of money values, the like of which does not exist anywhere else. The whole thing is unsound. There is no justification for it, and in the great reckoning which must come soon the workers themselves are going to be the greatest sufferers.

What this country needs at once is a great national campaign of education. False leaders and unsound theories are prevailing because of an utter lack of leadership on the side of common sense. Start out in earnest not to fight either Labor or Capital, but simply to make pople understand whither they are drifting, a great national campaign of education to make people see straight and think straight is the most pressing need in the United States to-day.
