the home, palace or shack, that has love for its sign. If life is a puzzle, men in New York and New Jersey are not the United States who as work it with love. Love never fails,

Giadden God by sweeping the people all into the circle of our weltare

God comes into the world thru open doors! AND JOSEPH

And Joseph gazed (as a father does) Upon the Lad whose eyes were glory-of-the-dawn, And dreamed, this Lad would grace, someday, an empire's throne.

And Joseph feared (as a father fears) Perhaps when He gone from his door, might lack for bread, Might have no place in bitter days to lay His head.

But Jeseph prayed (as a father prays) The Lad be a true man to His dream, how far

His journey led through dark's abyss to Morning Star. For Joseph knew (as a father knews)

That a man must hark to his spirit's urge, and go To his task against the world, if only God's fifers blow.

Well, He gained His Throne; (For Joseph's dream came true) paid blood to serve the Race.... And be, for aye, God's torch of Light and Truth and Grace. And Joseph (as a true man does)

Would, had he stood with Mary 'neath the cross, have said:---"Kingly you trod the common road, go kingly forth.

Your Kingdom (as all men's) is that you've won,—the Earth!"

THE STAR

The star that shined o'er Bethlehem's Inn for guilding them,--Is still the light of men . Who seek the Man. In deeps of dark-we'll find Him there, Always the Comforter. The Cheerer, Singer, Warrior, Neighbor, always the Friend. Unto and 'yond world's end. They honor Him (world's still His yoke and rood).

Who walk the Friendly Road. Why gaze into the heavens? He's not there. He is Heart-close, love-close to His Own folk. He's where the Man would be who is God's Light;— Always on trails of night. Yea, if we seek His company, seek not some star, He's where the neediest are.

And inasmuch as we play neighbor (bless His name) The world shall know He came.

THE MOTHER

If Mary, Mother, could have known-(She crooned a love-song, well-content) The hard road He must trudge alone, With load His love had dared, forspent,-

What would that Mother's heart have felt?

Her soul rejoiced when Beth'lem's star Strewed garlands on His face. 'T was well She saw not journey's end .... afar, Nor heard, Oh Mother! passing bell.

What would that Mother's heart have felt? Well, Calv'ry's Hill across no dream Of her's its awful shadows swept ....

Her vision, sheened with morning-gleam, Shewed throne for Him who smiling slept. What would that Mother's heart have felt!

Oh, gray and dread was Mary's hearth; Her Sharon Rose had flowered to blight! But had she heard the children's mirth That garlands His marred face with light,

What would that Mother's heart have felt?

And had she known her child would guide Men blind and wand'ring, faraway, Unto a gracious Father's side---(Oh, children laugh and sing and play,)

What would that Mother's heart have felt! And had she known a World's release

Lay in His keeping, had she known That from her hearth the Prince of Peace Would go to make all hearths His Throne,

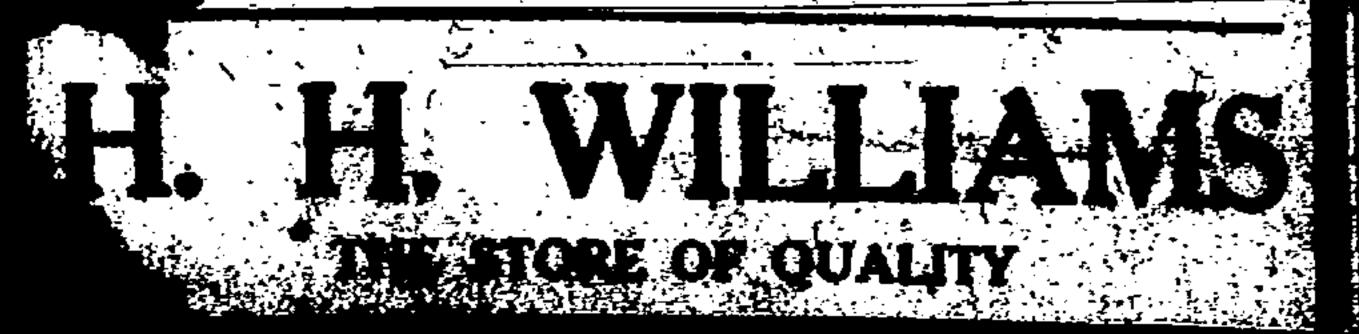

What would that Mother's heart have felt!
