SIGN-BOARDS ON THE UP-ROAD

THE ROAD TO JERICHO There runs a road to Jericho, twisting shadowed lonely road Cliffs gloom above, chasms below; It is a road that counsels care and prayer.

And folk (and you and I) must go that way, And rare 's the one who wins him through Without his neighbor's help, a countless multitude. There are folk who pass, And folk who stop.

some stopped not-The traveler's dream would have ended there; The traveler's bones would be whitening there; That star-aspiring soul would be gyved of the dark back there; That singing Soul who rides with Dawn would be stark back there; That one who ranges fields of sky and earth For colors, perfumes, precious atones to bring

To the dear Lord-God-who-waits-at-tachoor, Would be staring up from the oozing mire back there.

Three men (and you and I) Went-down the road to Jericho. There was a traveler (and you and I) In ill estate beside the road. And two (and you and I) went swiftly by. And one (and you and I) Came to the door of the pleasant Inn, Out from the dark of the crooked road, With another - and Another.

THE RAILROAD STRIKE

wages of railroad workmen.

The President, the Director General of the railroads and Congress used every precaution to prevent any disturbance among railroad employees of the railroads themselves. Therefore a strike of wide proportions among railroad employees seems to be the fact that the Brotherhood leaders and Mr. Gompers and the American Federation of Labor are found to be protesting vigorously against the disupon its ability to live up to its agreements. The leaders of the Brother-hoods have doubtless been entirely!

conscientious in their attempts to play fair with the railroads and to justify the confidence of the American people in their belief that the railroad men would abide by their agreement' and permit the settlement of the wage controversy by the machinery devised for its settlement. But now the American people find that the promise!

made by the railroad leaders is not in 'eality an agreement, since there is a strike among railroad men that is not out a strike as well against the duly i constituted leaders of railroad unions.

The chiefs of the "Big Four" Brother-hoods are among the most vigorous of all parties concerned in denouncing the "outlaw" railroad strike. They tion clear—that organized labor is in great danger of losing the confidence f the American people, and they operly fear that railroad employees' organizations will lose their tremendous power as a result of such erformances among strikers. Mi Gompers has pointed out that the American working man has gathered the big profits out of the structure of
