EARLY PLANTS FROM ANY GARDEN POSSIBLE

Protecting Plants From Cold Nights AND BEE WISDOM WHY EARLY SEASON BY AT LEAST A WEEK

Rhubarb can be had in the garden a week to ten days earlier than ordinarily, if provisions are made for protecting a few of the plants from cold nights and bad weather.

An inexpensive and simple method, suggested by the gardeners at the State College of Agriculture, is to place one-half of an old barrel, a box with the bottom and top removed, or a small coldframe over each of a few plants about the time they are coming thru the ground. This will protect the plant from cold winds, snow, and, to a large extent, keep the ground from alternately freezing and thawing in early spring.

As simple as it is, this will enable the gardener to harvest some of his crop very early. As an added aid to early growth a few forks of stable manure around the barrel or frame will be found to be as good a stimulant.

"BUMBLE BEE IS VERY VALUABLE; DON'T KILL HIM," IS PLEA OF PROF.

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 3. — "Do not destroy the bumble bee nests, for the bee is the greatest factor in the carrying of fertilizing powder of red clover," says Prof. W. P. Flint of the department of entomology, University of Illinois.

"Insects are the only agents for the fertilization of red clover because it cannot be self-fertilized," says Flint. "Moths and butterflies help in this work but they are not numerous enough to be a great factor. Bumble bees and honey bees are therefore practically the only agents available for pollination because they are the only insects with long enough tongues to reach into the corolla of the clover flower." In some countries, such as Austria, it has been necessary to import bees in order to produce clover seed.

"There are a number of insects, harmful to the clover. They destroy its seed and make further propagation impossible. No sure way has been found to destroy these insects, but the best plan seems to be to clip the first crop. This prevents their development, for the clover blossom from which they get their food will dry up. This plan has the added advantage of making the second bloom come when the bumble bees are thickest. There is, however, great danger of choking this second bloom by leaving the clipping on the ground.

"Farmers should do all they can to encourage the bumble bee to nest near clover fields. Recent experiments with artificial nests have proved them to be very successful. These nests are buried in the ground with a funnel-like snout protruding above the ground. In almost every case the average yield of clover has been greatly raised by this artificial method."

FEBRUARY LIVESTOCK RATIONS SUGGESTED

The following are the livestock rations for February, suggested by the animal husbandry workers at the State College of Agriculture, at Ithaca, N. Y. The approximate wholesale cost is also given.

For dairy cows — 200 pounds ground oats or barley $3.88; 100 pounds standard middlings $1.64; 200 pounds hominy, or corn meal $3.07; 400 pounds cottonseed meal $7.74; 100 pounds oil meal $2.16; 1,000 pounds will cost $18.49; 100 pounds will cost $1.85; 2,000 pounds will cost $36.98.

For calves and young stock — 300 pounds hominy or corn meal $4.82; 100 pounds wheat bran $1.78; 500 pounds oats or barley $9.70; 100 pounds oil meal $2.16; 1,000 pounds will cost $18.28; 100 pounds will cost $1.83; 2,000 pounds will cost $36.52.

ANGELICA ODD FELLOWS PLAN FINE NEW HOME

The Odd Fellows have taken up the matter and many plans are being talked over regarding the building of a temple, says the Angelica Advocate. We understand that the owners of the Engle and Rice properties are willing to sell the land to the Odd Fellows for the purpose of building a temple.

The plan which appeals to most of the members of that order is that of building a three story building on the site of the two burned stores, the first floor of the building to be two stores for rent, the second floor for dining hall, entertainment hall, etc., and the third floor for a large lodge room. The whole building to cost $25,000 and be heated with steam and lighted by electric lights.

The I. O. O. F. would rent to other orders. The whole plan as outlined looks good and there is every reason to believe that some such plan will be carried out, as the I. O. O. F. have long desired just such a building to take care of their rapidly growing needs.
