ADVISE FARMER TO MAKE MOST OF LIFE
Raising Crops and Selling Them at a Good Price Not All of Farming, Says Dr. Galpin

"A man can be as wise as an owl about the way to raise crops and the way to sell 'em and get good money for 'em too; but make a down-right fizzle after all in farming because he doesn't know how to make the most of living."

This is what Dr. J. C. Galpin, the well known economist of the department of agriculture at Washington, told a Farmers' Week audience at the State College of Agriculture, last week. His subject was "The Human Side of Farming."

"If farm men and women will only change their state of mind and think a great deal more of living now while the children are growing up, instead of reckoning on living so much better after the children are grown and they have made their money, then the home will very soon be made completely human," said Dr. Galpin.

Community Effort Needed
"I knew a farmer once whom everybody stopped to see for a minute," said the speaker in another part of his address. "He was more like folks than folks were like themselves. He was more than just friendly, more than a good, kind-hearted fellow, more than downright square with everybody. He seemed always to shake hands with the best there was in you, and never take any account of the worse part of you. Didn't seem to know what a duffer he was meeting up with anyway. Everybody knew his hobby, and called him, in friendly spirit always, 'Old Man Co-operation!' He used to say, 'If any three of us farmers would stick together on one thing for the good of the community, the rest of the community would wade thru fire and brimstone to follow. But the trouble is no three of us ever stick. Every one of us could multiply his own horse-power ten times over by hanging on to one another's coats-tails."

"'Old Man Co-operation' was always talking about 'Community Glue' 'Glue guaranteed to stick a community together so's an ox team can't budge 'em apart.' A community glue for farmers is a 'Community Glue' factory. Talking matters over, talking 'em over every now and then, saves the day for the community just as it does for the family."

How well have you advertised your property for sale?

Encourage boys and girls to save money for a definite goal — for a better education, and for the start in life on the farm or in business. The older members of the family can make it easier for the boys and girls to save.

In planning the papering this spring, distinguish between warm and cold colors. No dark room should be made gloomy with greys or deep blues, and bright tans are equally distressing on the walls of a sunny room.

When sewing in a room with a carpet or large rug on the floor, an old sheet tacked over the working space will catch threads and scraps. It is quickly and easily taken up when the work for the day is finished and makes sweeping and dusting unnecessary.
