M. W. REYNOLDS

WELLSVILLE, N. Y.

There is a free copy of every day life that contains a lesson for every adult person in Andover.

Two families lived side by side. One house was childless. In the other were two little boys.

The younger child was as sweet as ever-child was made, and was petted and coddled by the neighbors. The older one felt his isolation keenly, but said little. He became morose and self-willed, and was a trial to his parents.

One day the younger one died and the neighbors grieved. But there was no petting for the remaining boy, because he had not been petted during the life of his brother. He, too, grieved, but his disposition did not change.

The neighbor sat in his home one night thinking of the future of the remaining child. He wondered, if he had been quite fair with it, and concluded that he had not.

The next time he saw the little fellow he was kind and gentle with him. He gave him the same attention he had given his brother, and continued that course from day to day.

Soon he detected a change, and in the course of a few months there was a wonderful transformation. The moroseness gradually disappeared and was displaced by a sunny disposition.

Not all due to the neighbor of course, but it had a great effect. It aided in removing the gloom that clouded the infantile brain and brought his better qualities to the surface.

There are little children all around us in Andover each day. They are as sensitive to indifference and neglect as the boy whose story we have told.

What are we doing to put the sunshine of happiness into their lives? What are you doing?

PUNISHMENT TO FIT

SOME people advocate jail sentences for those who conspire against the government. But it is doubtful if that is the best policy, or even one that will produce satisfactory results.

Drastic action is necessary in such cases, but it should be action that will relieve us of the presence of the plotter instead of merely depriving him temporarily of his liberty.

In nearly every case those plotters come to us uninvited from foreign shores. Since they do not approve of the manner in which we manage our affairs, the logical course would be to send them back to the countries from whence they came. They may find conditions more to their liking in the hotbeds from whence they fled.

Foreigners who are willing to become productive assets in this country are always welcome. Dangerous liabilities are never wanted.

WHEN PEACE COMES

IS universal peace to come out of the great war? It is not. Even as a dream it is fading away.

Governmental greed in Europe is the rock upon which it was wrecked. International hatred and distrust will keep it submerged.

On the surface diplomacy maintains a fiction of unity, but underneath the fires of imperialistic passions are raging unchecked.

Dreams come and dreams go, but peace for this world will come when we are all gods, and not men and women.

DON'T cut down a tree, no matter how small it may be, unless it is absolutely necessary. American forests are rapidly disappearing and it will require many years to produce others in their stead. The excessive cost of lumber is due partly to the scarcity of trees and to the increasing difficulty of marketing those that remain. Foreign governments cultivate their forests as carefully as we do our crops. But we in America have yet to learn the wisdom of this.

In this world there are about a billion and a half of people. If you don't believe it go out and count 'em.

Will a man with an extraordinary intelligence and progressive vision the world looks up to him as a man among men. His name comes in for a share of credit for the progress such a son. The mother is usually forgotten. Women usually are where credit is to be given.

And yet it is the mother who brings him into the world—who is his constant teacher from infancy to maturity—who starts him on the road which he travels with such distinction and success.

Women have never been accorded their just dues in this world. It will be many years before they ever receive them, altho each one brings us a little nearer to the goal.

Man is quick to take but slow to give. Woman waits for her own.

YAP is a little island with a little name, yet it looms large upon the international horizon.

The council of the League of Nations, breaking faith with Mr. Wilson, has handed it over to Japan, altho its possession is vital to American cable interests.

When a nation founded upon honor deals with other nations where honor is a secondary consideration, it should not feel surprised when double-crossed.

Neither should it cancel billions of dollars worth of war debts when these paupers come whining around of their inability to pay.

Remember Yap. The end is not yet.

WHEN a pretty girl walks along a street many male eyes are upon her.

Nine out of ten will admire her in a clean-minded manner. The tenth man will make some pert remark. Of course it is not his sister or he would not make such remarks. He might even be ready to fight if he heard any other man make them about his relative.

These tenth men may not mean any real harm. Often they are only thoughtless and inconsiderate, never remembering that the other fellow is entitled to the same consideration and chivalrous courtesy they demand for their own.

Andover men are reasonably fair in this respect. It would be ideal if the tenth man would think before he speaks.

MODERN man is a great noise. A short time ago five hundred prominent people in New York attended a banquet to aid the cause of Irish freedom. The price was $100.00 a plate. The press made much over it, and the people who couldn't eat a hundred dollars worth of food were satisfied. It satiated their craving for the lime light.

If the same men had been asked to contribute a hundred dollars each to the Irish fund, without any noise or publicity we fear the response would not have been quite so generous.

Occasionally we hear of some man who goes around doing good unbeknown to his fellow men. But he is like a rusty pebble on the beach. The glitter of the bright one attract our attention and we pass the subdued one by, altho its value may be many times as great.

Glitter is kin to noise, and modern man likes both. Irish freedom if it comes will be won with something more substantial than hundred dollar feeds.

EIGHTY-SEVEN per cent. of the land in this country is not in use. It is yet to be placed under cultivation. The millions of foreigners seeking admission to this country, are headed for the cities, where they are not wanted. They do not care to settle upon this untitled land, where they are needed. They need us, but do we need them?

Summer furs will hardly be popular this season. They have hit the toboggan in price.

A really brave man feels no shame when he experiences fear. Even the most ferocious of elephants will tremble in the presence of a mouse.

And still sunshine in the heart is brighter than moonshine in the stomach.

Touch a sympathetic chord and humanity waits for you to touch it again.

How to pay an income tax isn't bothering us so much as how to get the income.

It's a fact, tho, that "Mountain dew" rhymes beautifully with "basement brew."

People who go out to hit the high spots of life generally end in the low spots of death.

Practically every man has a secret craving for wealth. A few are willing to earn it.

Keeping overlastingly at it brings disease, they say—and sometimes a punch on the jaw.

The world owes you only that which you go out and collect. It pays in advance.

The good points of a horse are pointed out by many people. In a man they are noted by a few.

Some folks are of a very saving disposition. They won't work for fear of expanding their vitality.

True, the beauty of woman is sometimes far as skin deep, but that is as far as the average male eye can penetrate.

Yes, we fellows are always ready to say something good about the man who is dead. He can't hit us for a touch.

Sometimes the woman who is disappointed in love consoles herself with the tho that he is a tightwad after all.

If you are in doubt about your income tax give 'em everything you have. It may prevent their calling for more.

The Lord gave you life, health, strength and happiness. An hour at church Sunday is little for you to give in return.

Now that we are all thru cussing winter we may soon indulge in our equally favorite pastime of tearing off a few at summer.

God made the world in six days and rested the seventh. We know a fellow who goes him six better by resting all of the time.

Some people just drift thru life waiting for the psychological moment to arrive. The devil generally gets them when it does.

A Chicago paper suggests that it might be called the "Jap-Yap-Yank" war, call off the dogs. Life is too short for such a mouthful.

Some men come into the world making a noise, drift thru life making a bigger one and pass out with a distracting one. After that—we don't know.

Congress, says an exchange, will soon be deprived of its last excuse for doing nothing, and still there are those who think nothing is preferable to something.

Finally we are tired of reading about wars, murders, holdups, divorces, scandals and other mild forms of amusements. Nothing with a thrill ever happens any more.
