Of Interest to Farmers

WARNS AGAINST SCAB INFECTED POTATOES

If Used for Seed, Inferior Quality Product is Sure, Growers Say— Avoid Rhizoctonia Also

The farmer who grows potatoes to make a profit will avoid using any untreated seed potatoes which may be infected with scab or rhizoctonia, according to Glenn T. Carter, a successful grower of Marathon, who addressed a recent gathering of farmers at the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca.

Mr. Carter pointed out that scab produces potatoes of inferior quality and rhizoctonia kills the young plants and thereby reduces yields. "For success in any kind of business," Mr. Carter said, "it is necessary that the person should have sufficient interest in his or her work to do it thoroughly, and at the same time be on the alert for better and practical methods for improvement. This is particularly true in securing large yields of potatoes of good quality. In the cultural methods for potatoes there are three main points to be considered, namely: Good seed, thorough cultivation, thorough spraying and seed treatment for tuber diseases.

In order to secure and maintain your seed up to a high standard it is necessary to select the seed from high yielding tubers or hills that are free from both foliage and tuber diseases, especially those not controlled by seed treatment or spraying. It is also important to select for uniformity of size and shape of tuber.

Cultivation's Part
"Thorough cultivation increases the yield of keeping down weeds, liberating plant food and conserving moisture.

"Spraying with bordeaux and poisons insures your crop from ravages of late blight, beetles and other injurious insects. Your crop is not insured from blight by spraying unless 200 pounds pressure is maintained in spraying at the proper times.

"If scab and rhizoctonia are present on the tubers you cannot afford to plant untreated seed. Scab produces potatoes of inferior quality and rhizoctonia kills the young plants and thereby reduces yields.

"Good seeds and thorough cultivation are absolutely essential in securing a good crop but no one can afford to plant good seed and cultivate thoroughly unless he insures his crop by spraying his vines and treating his tubers for diseases."

SPRING PLANTINGS IS TIMELY SUBJECT

Persons Who Want to Beautify Home Grounds This Year are Advised to Order Stock Early

Householders who are planning to beautify their home grounds this year are advised by the landscape gardeners not to delay ordering shrubs for spring planting. It is none too early to plan such spring planting as is desired. Nursery catalogues should be obtained, available literature studied, and a choice made of shrubs suitable for the location to be planted. This list should be sent to the chosen nursery as soon as possible in order that selection may be made before the stock in the nursery has been depleted.

It is also well to remember that the stock for spring delivery is usually dug in the fall and stored in cellars thru the winter; consequently if orders are delayed until late in the spring there is danger of a loss of vitality in the shrubs.

Plant Early if Possible
The earlier the shrubs are planted after the soil is in condition to be worked the better, as the spring rains will compact the soil around the roots of the plants and put them in better condition to start into growth.

In planting, the holes should be made larger than the roots of the plant to be set. A balance between the root and the upper growth of the plant should be maintained by pruning back enough of the upper growth to equal the root injury. If the soil is dry, it should be watered freely and a mulch of coarse manure applied.

It is announced that further information as to locations and desirable shrubs will be given by the landscape art department of the State College at Ithaca, N. Y.

Agrigraphs

Spring prunings of many shrubs may be profitably used for cuttings to form new plants.

Uncle Ab says you don't need to hunt for worries; it's hard enough to dodge those that are thrown at you.

If the spring seeds are on hand and they should be—keep them away from mice in covered tin of glass receptacles.

It is time for this country to do as much for agricultural research as it has for agricultural education and extension.

Birds are good neighbors. They should be in place for the first time for the best time of the season. Light be planned now.

WEEDS? YES; BUT SO ARE THEY GOOD FOOD

Dandelions So Common Many Housewives Fail to Realize Their Food Value—Some Recipes

Because dandelions are that of weeds and are so common, many housewives who are seeking ways to vary the diet along in the spring fail to make of the sprouty little plants as good food. And some who do use them as "greens" do not realize that there are many other ways in which they may be utilized. Here are three good recipes vouchered for by the home economics workers at the State College at Ithaca.

Dandelion soup: 1 cupful dandelion pulp, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cupful milk, salt and pepper, yolk of hardboiled egg. Make a white sauce and add to it the dandelion pulp. Just before serving the soup add the yolk of egg which has been pressed thru a sieve.

Dandelion timbales: 2 eggs, beaten, 1 1/4 cupfuls milk, 2 tablespoonfuls melted butter, 2-3 teaspoonful salt, 1/2 teaspoonful pepper, 1 teaspoonful onion juice, 1 cupful chopped cooked dandelion greens. Mix the ingredients in the order given. Turn the mixture into buttered molds, place the molds in a pan of hot water, and bake the timbales in a modern oven until they are firm. Remove them from the molds, and serve them with tomato sauce.

Dandelions and tomato sauce: 2 tablespoonfuls butter, 2 tablespoonfuls flour, 1/2 cupful strained tomatoes, cooked dandelions, salt and pepper. Make a tomato sauce of the first three ingredients. Add the greens, and mix them well with the sauce. Add the seasoning. Turn the mixture in the shape of a mould on to a plate, an garnish it with hard-boiled eggs or thin slices of tomato.

NOT HARD TO MAKE NEAT GARDEN ROWS

Two Sticks and a String Will Turn the Trick—Some Hints on Buying Seed Given

Many gardeners lay off their gardens by the eyes and by guessing spaces between rows; some would seem to be cross-eyed and poor judges of distance, garden fans say. The gardener who will guide his rows by a garden line stretched on two small posts and regulate the spaces between by marks previously measured off on his hoe handle can obtain a result of which he will be proud, practice has shown. A neat garden adds much to the owner's pleasure.

Rows running the long way of the garden are easier to cultivate, especially with the wheel hoe; but if the family is small so that only a little of each vegetable is used at a time, or if one can work in the garden only a few minutes a day, short rows may be better.

Buying Seeds
Most gardeners buy seeds "by guess and by golly." They are almost sure to get too many and thus waste their own money and some of the labor of their fellow men. The following estimate, from gardeners at the State College is based on the average requirements of a family of four and should be helpful to the beginner and to some more experienced gardeners as well.

Bush beans, 1 to 2 quarts; corn 1 to 2 pints; peas, 2 to 4 quarts; spinach, one-half pound; beet, 4 ounces; turnips, 2 or 3 ounces; carrots, chard, radish and salsify, one ounce each; cabbage, cucumber, lettuce, squash, melon, watermelon, parsnip, muskmelon and tomato, one-half ounce each. A quart or two of onion sets should furnish plenty of green onions.

DEATH RACE IN GRIM RACE

Hurrying Home, to New York, A. J. Cahill Passed Away on Erie Train, Near Wellsville, Sunday

Death beat an Erie passenger train in a grim race Sunday which ended tragically and sadly, near Wellsville, when A. J. Cahill, who told fellow passengers he was going home to the city, uttered a stifled cry, lurched forward in his seat and fell dead.

It was a melancholy tale that two or three passengers who had talked with Cahill related over the dead man's body. Cahill was a very sick man, suffering the ravages of tuberculosis in an advanced stage. For many months he had been living on the plains of Arizona, trying to get well. Persons who rode New York with him from Chicago listened to the dying man while he related to them his futile fight for life in the Southwest. Cahill had remained in the arid climate of Arizona, fighting doggedly for life until at last physicians told him the truth—advised him that he was as good as gone and told him that he had better start at once if he wanted to get home in time to die.

Then the race between the grisly old Reaper and the stricken man began. Cahill's home is in New York City, but where and with whom he did not say. It was more than a 2,500 mile journey between him and home, but he started out from Western Arizona, hoping to get to New York in time there to breathe his last. He got to Omaha all right, he reached Chicago safely, and there he boarded Erie train No. 4, believing that death was trailing far in his wake, and that he would reach the seaboard in time to order his small affairs and then turn calmly to await the coming of his doom. But death was only waiting for the sprint of the last lap. The Old Man caught Cahill just as his train was entering Wellsville, and the fleeing man was too weak to offer further resistance. He died within a minute.

Cahill's body was removed from the train at Wellsville, and taken to an undertaking establishment. All day Sunday efforts were made to locate some loving relatives in New York. Late Sunday evening, however, word came from friends who will claim the man's remains.

It will pay to feed the family as carefully as the pigs or the dairy cow. If there's something to balanced rations for livestock, it stands to reason "just food" isn't enough for the family.

Trying to farm these days without reading is like trying to farm without plowing. Do you take your home paper, a farm paper and do you get the bulletins from the State College of Agriculture?

Upwards of 500 persons were reported by Miss Hart to be exposed to infection. Eighteen of the active cases are children under 16 years of age. Nutritional work is being done in a number of schools in the county. During the last year and a half, eight clinics have been held in various villages and towns of the county.
