CHAMBER BANQUET WAS FINE TIME

Local Organization Enjoys Splendid Address by Attorney Cameron, and Entertainers From Hornell

The third annual banquet of the Andover Chamber of Commerce was a most pleasing and enjoyable affair. It will be remembered as one of the will be remembered as one of the son's finest sectal gatherings if

About one hundred ten were seated at the daintily decorated tables, at 8:30 p/m. The ladies of the Re-bekan Lodge serving the banquet had everything nicely arranged, and the menu well prepared and nicely served.

His pep and vim brought out a little action on the part of the banqueters, who were called upon to "all join in singing" a number of nonlar songs during the serving of the dinner. Howard did fine, but the rect of the bunch seemed to be afraid their wives would find out that they could sine.

After dinner to a stmaster W. F. O'Connell brought the banqueters into a fine spirit of mirth by use of several well-told stories, and his pleasing introductory remarks. The program was as follows:

Attorney Cameron's address was full of helpful ideas in dealing with civic matters, especially for Chamber of Commerce organizations. Although mighty interesting speaker, he even out done his reputation for orators, wit and good common sense advice to the assembled guests, Thursday night. He pointed out that a Chamber of Chambers was more then a bnames association of people for personal

A COMPARISON

Andover Has Twenty-four Years 973.

A unique problem in ages was receptly worked out by Comrade T. N. Boyd. There are twelve Old Veterans of the Civil War now living in Andover out of the 149 who came home from the service.

Mr. Boyd was curious to know whether the average age of those who did not go to war was greater or less than that of those who saw service in the war. He went out and found the twelve oldest men living in Andover, who did not go to war. The result of his investigation is some surprise.

The average age, and the total ages of those who did not go and those who did service is exactly the same, 1973 years.

Here is the list to prove it.
