Cable dispatches say that betting on horse racing is carried on in Paris at the rate of a million dollars a day. If the French government is so hard up for money they should levy a tax on these winnings. It would put them on easy street.

THE GREENWICH NEWS
The town that hasn't a newspaper these days doesn't amount to much. Grant J. Tett, publisher of The Journal of Greenwich--New York, not England--hit it right when he wrote: "Every town that has passed the hamlet stage and aspires to be something more than a place where the train stops because the time table says it must, has its newspaper. The newspaper is the voice of the community and extends into the surrounding country the influence of the town that it represents and serves." Are you properly appreciative of the fact that YOUR community is not voiceless?
