ODD DEVICES FOR PATENTS

Curiosities That Have Been Accorded Place in the Archives of Great London Office.

Some recent curiosities patented in England are described by the Illustrated London News. There are two head-washing caps, one of which is an inverted metal bowl with a rubber ring that fits it tightly to the head and a spigot by which it may be attached to a rubber tube; the other is a helmet-like device with an inlet for water at the top and an outlet back on the neck.

Others are in automobiles for use on land or water. It has a propeller and a detachable hull, while the fore wheels are encased and act as a rudder.

Then there is a railway train fitted with a conduit passing from the smokestack over the roofs of the cars to the rear of the train, through which smoke, vapor and cinders are conveyed.

For bathing the face there is a basin with a recessed end for supporting the neck, and a detachable tube through which the bather may breathe while soaking her complexion in the water.

A protective garment for motorists and others is made of a double fabric containing shock absorbers, in the form of hollow rubber balls.

Another ingenious person patents a buffer to be placed on the bows of ships so as to lessen the shock of collisions. Bent plates fitting the converging sides of the ship support heavy spiral springs projecting forward to a steel plate that extends across the bows.

Light Railways in New Zealand. The minister of public works announced in his annual statement to parliament that the proposal to construct privately owned light-railway lines in different parts of the Dominion to connect up rural sections with the government main trunk line would be encouraged and efforts made to push the project. The construction of these lines will call for a large amount of material as well as construction machinery and rolling stock. —Scientific American.

INCREASES IN TRAVEL

Train to Egypt Picked Up Passengers and Freight as It Proceeds Along Line.

An American engineer tells of a train that will conveniently stop whenever freight or passengers appear by the side of the track. This rail way is to be found in Egypt. The train at starting, as seen by the American, consisted only of the engine and coach, which might have been a baggage car with four windows cut in it, and a bench placed all around. But before it had gone very far the train came upon a couple of trucks filled with cane standing on the line in the middle of a cane field. These were attached to the front of the engine, which moved slowly along till they came to another batch. These were almost empty, but the cargo was piled on each side of the train, and Arabs rapidly loaded them, while the employees took advantage of the delay to water the engine.

This task was performed in the most primitive fashion by two water carriers, who, having placed a notched section of a date tree between the engine and the ground, to serve as a ladder, laboriously filled the goatskins, which are swung on their backs, at a ditch by the side of the track, climbed up the tree ladder to the engine and emptied their goatskins into the boiler. By the time it was full the trucks were loaded, and the train proceeded, pushing about a dozen trucks before it.

The children are free from the study hours—Mothers are taking their families away to mountain resorts for weeks at freedom from house-keeping responsibilities and social exertions. School teachers are enjoying their freedom as much as the scholars—Young men and young women are planning their two weeks' vacations from all-year-round employment—Working people everywhere, and business men and women of every capacity, are getting ready for the glorious days of freedom and fun, for which all of us work and look forward throughout the year.

And our Vacation Days are Here! Or they are just ahead of us. They are so long in coming, and so quick in going, that we have to make the utmost possible out of them while we have them. There must be no dull moments—there must be no disappointments—there must be nothing lacking—nothing forgotten—nothing to lose time to send back home for. We must have all the right apparel. We must have all the things needed to make us comfortable and to play with. What a joy it is to be able just TO PLAY! There is more health in play, and the youthful spirit of happiness that goes with it, than in all the medicine of all the pharmacies in the world. Go away with the determination to make every minute a happy one. We can do a lot to help you make things that way.

Ads That Will Add

to your sales is what you want—and what you will get if you advertise properly.

Advertisements that reach your prospective customers is what you want as a most direct method of putting your products in the most effective manner before them.

Your local paper is the medium that puts your very words beneath the eyes of those who are looking for just the articles you may be marketing.

Do not hesitate. A minute lost in advertising is days lost in the rising to prominence of your merchandise.

We must show all people what we have to sell before they will buy.

The most practical way of showing them is to get them to the very spot.

And the way to get them there is to
