

The Burrows National Bank has just had installed on their vault door an Anakin Burglar Proof Locking Device which re-locks the door and keeps the burglars out when same has been attacked by either an acetylene torch or nitro-glycerine.

This bank is one of the first to have installed this modern equipment in this section.

In the past eighteen months this device has saved forty-nine banks that have been attacked by burglars.

Owners of dogs who fail to obtain licenses in compliance with the dog licensing law are liable to prosecution with a penalty of $10 and costs, under an amendment enacted by the last Legislature and now in effect. Under the old law unlicensed dogs were liable to seizure, but in spite of this many were without license. Under the amended law, the owner is made responsible.

Mrs. George Ayrault, of Perry, N. Y., a patient at the Wellsville Sanitarium was found dead near the R. R. bridge at Scio, Saturday p. m. Mrs. Ayrault came to Wellsville a week previous, and while in a nervous condition, gave no indications of insanity. The nurse left her in bed at 8 p. m. Friday and she was not seen again until her body was found where she had evidently been killed by Eric train 5. One of the patents claims to have heard some one leave the building about 3 a. m., but gave it no special thought. Deceased was 53 years of age.

Ray Rodgers, 35 years of age, of Penn Yan, and two daughters, Ruth and Helen 11 and 13 years old, were drowned in Lake Keuka, last Monday. The Rodgers family were enjoying the day by the lake. The two girls were in bathing when a cry came from them for help. Mr. Rodgers was not a good swimmer, but at once plunged into the water and in attempting to rescue them all three were drowned. Mrs. Rodgers and younger daughter were on the bank. The wife jumped on a raft and made a desperate attempt to reach the three without success.

Children Who Drowned in Keuka Lake Are Not Yet Found

Penn Yan, July 20. — In an effort to recover the bodies of Ruth and Helen Rodgers, drowned Sunday afternoon near the Dr. Ross property, on the east side of Keuka Lake, a diver is coming from Rochester this afternoon with a complete deep water-diving apparatus. Since Sunday afternoon when Ray H. Rodgers, of this place and Elmira, was drowned in an attempt to save the lives of his two daughters, scores of volunteer workers have been dragging that section of Keuka Lake where the children were drowned. Dynamite was used in an effort to bring the bodies to the surface, but in vain.

The body of Mr. Rodgers is at the undertaking parlors of Thayer and Waldo on Jacob Street, but it is expected that later his remains will be taken to the family home on Stark Avenue. The triple drowning accident occurred shortly before 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon and although diligent search has been continually made, both day and night for the bodies, yet nothing has been revealed to indicate where the bodies are at the present time. It is believed that they might have sunk into a deep hole at the bottom of the lake as it is not that the undercurrent is strong enough at the place where the accident occurred to cause the two bodies to float away very far.

At the time of the triple drowning accident Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers, the parents of Ray H. Rodgers, who was drowned were away, the mother being in Buffalo and the father in one of the southern states. They have both been notified of the triple drowning accident and are expected to reach their home by tomorrow at least. Until they reach home no definite arrangements will be made for the funeral.

A Yellow Peril

Can you read your laundry mark? T. Phillip Terry, author of "Terry's Guide to Japan," tells the following joke on himself—a joke which emphasized the advisability of keeping on good terms with one's Chinese laundryman. The Chink in Mr. Terry's home town was inclined to be surly; so one day the guide book writer lectured him on the subject of courtesy, and urged him to adopt civility as a habit. The admonition palpably displeased the celestial, but he said nothing. Later Mr. Terry, who lived several years in China and knows something of the language, was surprised to find his shirts and collars marked with the Cantonese hieroglyph, signifying "upstart jackass."

Better Than Alarm Clock

Instead of leaving word at a hotel desk for an early morning call, there is now a new call system which enables guests to call themselves at any desired hour. A system of electric clocks is the newest hotel installation. The guest simply sets an indicator at night, somewhat similar to an alarm clock and a low musical chime rings at the desired time. The clocks have a magnetic stop and hands so that the guest can read in the dark.

Novel "Touring Cars"

Tours of the battlefields of France are now made by means of "road pull-mans" which are very commodious trailers hitched onto the rear of a powerful touring car, and in this the traveler eats and sleeps. A party of six persons can be accommodated easily on one of these cars, and if they are willing to crowd in, a few more may be taken along.

Training Mine Rescuers

The United States government maintains nine railroad cars traveling among the miners of the country, teaching them first aid, mine rescue and other things which are likely to be of special interest to them. In addition to this there are trains maintained to rush to the aid of miners who may be injured or trapped in quired and that women are independent thinkers.

That feminine fashions will not be coerced by law, even though prison sentence be inflicted, was the opinion of Prof. Jenaba Fazel of the Queen's University of Tehran, who addressed members of the California club recently on the feminine movement in Persia.

While some American and English women were being imprisoned for asking for the suffrage, their progressive sisters in Persia were filling the prisons because they insisted on leaving off the veil. The unveiled became such a majority that the falls in Persia were overcrowded and in despair the government acquiesced. That women may appear on the streets of Persia without the veil imposed by the state religion is regarded over there as a great triumph in the emancipation of womanhood.

Professor Fazel, who holds the chair of philosophy in the only university for women in Persia, spoke in musical Persian, his sentences being interpreted as he went along by Mirza Ahmad Sohrab, former secretary of the Persian legation at Washington, and likewise a believer in the emancipation of the women of the Orient. Both are followers of the Bahai philosophy, through the teachings of which the Persian women attained what independence, of thought and action they enjoy today.

According to the Persian savant, it is the destiny of women to become members of the congresses and parliaments of all the countries of the world.—San Francisco Chronicle.

ROME HOME OF GLUTTONS

Table of Ancient Emperor Vitellius Said to Have Cost Him $1,500 Every Day.

Very little is known of the food of the ancient Egyptians, authorities say, after explaining that the dwellers in the Nile valley were so fond of their cabbage that they deemed it.

The Romans raised a great hurroo about the art of the Athenian cooks, they captured, history records. But the delicate aroma of the Greek pot was unobtainable to satisfy the thick Roman palate. Rome, in its pursuit of physical pleasure, discarded its cabbage and sought for rare and delicate slanders. Pollio, it is said, fed the flesh of human slaves to his fowls to invest their meat with a new flavor. Emperor Vitellius' daily market expense was $15,000. At one banquet he dispensed 2,000 kinds of rare fish and 7,000 bird species. His table cost him $200,000 for one four-month period. To arouse their jaded appetites, it is written, the Romans ate brains of humming birds, tongues of nightingales and roes of the rarest fish.

Testamentary to the skill of the Grecian cook is the story of the fish which was so much of a sport and artist that he smiled at admiration in the face of the chef who was frying him so deftly and with such flavor.

Strive to Excel.

You are not true to yourself when you are satisfied with doing what others have done. You may, by nature be fitted for very much greater work than your neighbors. You may also be short on some points wherein they are strong. In either case it would not be fair to measure yourself by them. There are certain things you can surpass in. In these you should greatly excel if you attain your possibilities. So measure yourself in the light of your ability and the opportunities offered by the problem. Then put yourself to the task of hitting off 100 per cent efficiency in every attempt. Of course you will find it hard. If it were not, every lad in the community would be doing what you are trying to do. So look for results and see that you get them.—Exchange.

Tractors in Arctic.

Tractors are crawling over the snowfields of northern Greenland with supplies of the Long Koch polar expedition. At last the dog team of the Eskimo has a partial substitute. With their adaptable caterpillar tread, the tractors, like the army tanks, are able to negotiate sharp grades and even wallow over obstacles, along their truckless course. Not that the picturesque dog is to be altogether displaced. For heavy transportation the tractor is useful, but when it comes to the mail, the dog teams will still be an essential of the rural delivery service in the land of the igloo.
