Sunny Side

Aug. 31. — Sunny Side was the scene of a very pretty wedding Wednesday morning, when Anastasia FitzGerald and Edward Sinning were united in marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Arnold and Dr. Wm. Roach, of Buffalo, are spending

France has a playhouse, built on a barge, which travels from Tours to Strasbourg. It is a gorgeous affair painted in white and silver and called the "bateau-theatre."

It wanders along the canals and wherever it stops the French, who have few entertainments, crowd into the Fulminant to see a dramatic representation.

It is agreeable life to move leisurely by canal and river, to stop where one pleases, to play to a crowded house in a salie, which is always ready, to give pleasure to a whole community and profit to oneself.

The room where the performances take place is spacious enough. It holds five hundred persons and every one of the families covered in red velvet in this blue and gold decorated hall is occupied whenever the floating theatre casts anchor in an out-of-the-way town.

The actors are their own mariners. There is much work to be done on board any kind of boat, as all who have ever helped to sail a yacht will agree. They all lend a hand. They scrub the decks and they make the preparations which are constantly called for. What do they not do? They go out shopping—and is there anything so delightful as to shop always in strange towns? They prepare their play bills and announce their advent. The mere business of acting is only an incident in this varied life.

We Needed Help.

"All kinds of communications are received in a newspaper office. For instance, an old subscriber asks us to tell him how to get rid of a troublesome guest who came to stay a few days and has been there a month."

"We haven't time to answer a foolish question like that. Just pigeon-hole it."

"No, I'm going to answer it somehow. The writer states in a postscript that if we don't give him some advice he's going to set fire to his house." — Birmingham Age-Herald.

Tendency.

"One best political life, whatever the best may be, is tending to wear beauty and holiness."
