Picturesque on hot days along upper East side peddler is the Turk. He may be merely a native American in disguise, but he adds to the interest of what might otherwise be a commonplace peddler's trade by being about as familiar with through the pages of three geography books.

Across his back, a high collar as his body, and held up by a thick strap slung over his right shoulder and under his left arm. A sort of Sam-Brown belt encircled his waist, except that where on the Sam-Brown belt would be a place for bullets he has receptacles for glasses. You ask him for a glass of lemonade. He bows to you, and in so doing operates a mechanism which spills from the tank, through a bung hole near the bottom, some ice-cold lemonade, which falls into a glass he holds in his hand. As the liquid nears the top, he straightens up, holds up the glass, and you give him two cents.

A more frequent spectacle is that of the individual who is, conspicuously crying: "Heiser arbus, heiser bubas." He is declaiming, in Yiddish: "Hot peas, hot beans." His heating contrivance is in a four-wheeled cart he pushes by hand. For one cent he gives you a small bag, for two cents a larger bag, and for five cents he sells you enough to give you cramps. The presence of the "heiser arbus" man is a signal for the kids of the neighborhood to run to their mothers for pennies.

LUNG BATH SOMETHING NEW
Physician Recommends It as Highly Exhilarating. Through Admitting It Can Be Overdone.

"We are all taking sea baths now," said a doctor. "Lots of people take mud-baths. Stomach-baths are prescribed frequently for dyspeptics. But few of us take lung baths as we should."

"You can swab out your lungs as one swabs out a room. Pure air does it. You go out where the air is pure, throw your head well back; inhale through your nostrils as much of this pure air as your lungs will hold, and then expel it swiftly and forcibly. Do this 15 or 20 times—seven or eight if you like. Astonishing how it will cleanse your lungs! Astonishing how good it will make you feel!"

Air is a great stimulant, and some of these lung bathers overstimulate themselves so that they get nervous, can't sleep at night and so on. They do this by such tricks as breathing the pure air through one nostril only, taking too many lung baths and that sort of thing. Such over-indulgence is perhaps pardonable if you have a piece of hard mental work to do, but if it is made a habit of, it will break down the health like over-indulgence in cocaine or hooch or any other stimulant.—Detroit Free Press.

Phoney (why should he be phoney of these restaurants?) said Sidney, "I do I," said his friend Aleck. "For the same reason. They put showing gun boxes in the subway station. Sid's lips flapped on his face half if any part of their ears should be showing."

"Not so," returned Sidney. "Watch me."

They entered a white porcelain restaurant, the walls of which were lined with mirrors that opened to the view a number of tables, the tables were set with restaurants.

They were seated a few minutes, and Aleck observed that Sidney was smiling cordially into space. There was no one near by except a flapper with an expressive back, the back being toward Aleck and Sidney.

"You get like a dummy in the marking," said Aleck. "What are you grinning at in that lead cantaloupe sign for?"

"I'm not. I'm looking at the peach. Ain't she a bear?"

Then Aleck, gazing in the direction he saw Sid's eyes were bent, looked in the mirror and was confronted by the gaze of the flapper with the expressive back. He saw that she had a friendly grin with an extra measure.

Many a friendship's been made through a restaurant looking glass," observed Sid. "You don't mind eating alone, do you, Aleck? Excuse me."—New York Sun.

The Compass Plant. On the prairies and plains of Utah, Texas and southern Minnesota there grows a wonderful plant, which has proved useful to travelers wandering over these vast tracts of country. It is called the compass plant, or pilot plant, because of a peculiarity in the growth of the leaves, which grow alternately along the stalk and point precisely north and south. The Indians followed the direction given them by these pointing leaves, and told the white men about it. This plant belongs to the family of the Compositae, and looks very much like the sunflower. It has a strong, resinous odor, somewhat like turpentine, and sometimes goes by the name of "turpentine plant."—Christian Science Monitor.

Service, Protection and Cost
When a buyer of insurance is thinking about the company or agency with which he will place his insurance, the three points uppermost in his mind are: Where can I get the most prompt and efficient service, the nearest to absolute protection and at the same time, moderate and reasonable in cost. If this same buyer of insurance will take the time to check up, or make a comparison, using Service, Protection and Cost as his standard of comparison, represented by this agency with those that are not, he will eventually insure with us.

Save Coal—Kerosene is Cheaper
THIS fall—make your home cozy and comfortable with a Perfection Oil Heater. It will provide warmth just where and when you want it, and it will save you from starting your furnace before it is really needed. The Perfection is so simple and easy to operate. Just the thing for the children's bedroom on those sharp, frosty mornings! And it can be carried easily to any other room in the house, where extra heat is needed. It saves lighting the furnace before the real cold weather starts, and it is most economical as compared with coal. Sold by hardware, housefurnishing and department stores, in blue or black finish, with or without nicked trimmings. Ask your dealer to show you one. For best results use Socoony Kerosene.

A Dinner at the Expense of the Losing Club!
150 Healthy Holsteins in the November 15-16 Sale at Hornell, N. Y. 150
ALLEGANY COUNTY Holsteins in four months' testing under Federal and State control have proved 97.78 Per Cent. free from tuberculosis, slightly over 2 Per Cent. showing any trace of disease.
STEBUEN COUNTY closely approaches this extraordinary record.
BOTH COUNTIES are putting into the coming sale the pick of their finest animals, selected by competent judges representing the two counties. In many herds the committee has been given absolute freedom of choice. The result is a better lot of animals than were ever before listed for a sale in the Allegany-Stauben district.
THE BIG BANQUET to be an evening feature of the great 2-days' sale will be paid for by the Society whose offerings record the lowest average in the sale.
YOU ARE INVITED to the Sale and the Banquet.
