SHOULD KNOW SEED DEALER

Unscrupulous Agents Work Different Sections of State Each Year.

The state seed analyst at the New York Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, has just issued a statement warning New York farmers against placing seed orders with agents who are unknown to them or who represent seed dealers that do not have the unqualified approval of the local county agent or good seed-committee men. Definite facts show that certain sections of the State are worked each year by unscrupulous agents who cannot work the same section consecutive years, says this Station authority. These agents display unusually fine samples of seed upon the strength of which they secure orders that too frequently are filled from poorly cleaned or country-run seed of low quality. Seeds oats and cabbage seem to be the leading lines worked in this way from evidence accumulated at the seed testing laboratory.

"Each year workers in the seed-testing laboratory are called upon to test seeds which the farmer finds are not at all as they were represented to be by some agent who had solicited the order on the buyer's farm," says the seed analyst. "Farmers have it entirely within their power to stop this traffic in bargain seeds by refusing to place an order with anyone unless they are very well acquainted with the agent or with the house that the agent represents."

HIGH-GRADE FERTILIZERS

Larger Amount of Plant Food Results Cost Per Pound

A pound of plant food in a high-grade commercial fertilizer costs less, or should cost less than in a low-grade fertilizer even tho the latter may cost less per ton than the high-grade product, says the chemist at the New York Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva. This is due to the fact that high-grade fertilizers carry more plant food per ton than less concentrated mixtures, thus reducing the cost per pound of the active ingredients. By a high-grade fertilizer, the station authorities mean one in which there is 15 pounds or more of plant food per 100 pounds of fertilizer, while the low-grade products contain mixtures having less than 10 pounds of plant food per 100 pounds of fertilizer.

Cost of Figures for 1922

Based on information gathered in the 1922 inspection of fertilizers, the station workers found that the average retail price per ton was $30 for the lowest grade fertilizers and $41.70 for the highest grade. The average amount of plant food per 100 pounds of fertilizer was 9.4 pounds in low-grade and 17.55 pounds in high-grade fertilizer, while the cost of the plant food averaged 16 cents per pound for the low-grade mixtures and 11.9 cents per pound for the best quality product.

In the case of 400 brands of complete fertilizers, that is mixtures containing nitrogen, available phosphoric acid, and potash, sold in 1922, 13 per cent. of the purchases were for fertilizers retailing from $20 to $30 per ton; 48 per cent. for goods selling from $30 to $40; 32 per cent. from $40 to $50; and 7 per cent. for more than $50. In the opinion of the station chemist, the cost of the plant food in complete fertilizers retailing for more than $50 per ton is entirely too high in most cases coming under consideration.
