

Of Interest to Farmers

FARMERS MUST SOLVE THEIR PROBLEMS THEMSELVES

Dean Davenport, of Illinois, Asks: "What Shall the Farmer Do?"

Ithaca, April 9. — "Both individually and collectively the farmer should be an optimist, but not a fool optimist that refuses to read the handwriting on the wall. It is there, let us read it and act accordingly."

This was the conclusion to which Dean Emeritus Eugene Davenport of the College of Agriculture at the University of Illinois came, in an address delivered at the College of Agriculture here on "What Shall the Farmer Do?"

"The farmer does not need to be told he is in a difficult position," Mr. Davenport began. "He knows it. The thing he wants to know is what to do about it. Nobody can fully answer the question, but there are certain features of the situation that can be fairly well and clearly stated."

"First of all, the farmer must meet his problem both individually and collectively, and the two are distinct, for nobody can expect his organizations to conduct his business for him."

Farmer Must Keep Going
"Individually, the farmer must continue to do business, for he must continue to live and pay taxes. Fortunately, he cannot, like labor, lie down on the job and wait until the world comes to his terms, for this is war, and we have had more than enough of that. He may be forced to change the whole aspect of his farming, but that should be avoided if possible, for most changes are costly both in money and in time."

"In any event, he must choose more carefully than ever the crops and livestock best suited to his soil, climate and local conditions, a step that needs to be taken anyhow as we pass into old country conditions."

"As conditions are just now with high wages and no unemployment, animals and animal products are most profitable because labor consumes the best meats and dairy products when it can afford to do so. Expansion in this direction must be tempered by caution for a few months at any time may produce unemployment, the first effect of which is a drop in prices for animal products. In any event, the farmer ought to understand that our present 'prosperity' rests upon anything but a sound basis. It is largely due to extravagance, debts, and extremely high wages with under-production all abnormal and unhealthy."

Keep Out of Debt
"As an individual, the farmer should keep out of debt, or if already involved he should plan to pay off as rapidly as possible and refund at lower interest rates, for these should be more favorable in the near future."

"He must avoid building so far as possible and all unnecessary purchases, even of farm machinery, for if he provides for the restoration of fertility under present conditions he will probably have his hands full. If in debt, he may even be obliged to 'run' his land a bit in order to meet his payments."

"In it all, 'safety first' is his slogan, for nobody is out of the woods yet in this matter of beating back to 'normalcy,' whatever that may be."

"Collectively, the farmer must first of all be outspoken in season and out of season about the labor situation, for that, far more than speculation, is what causes the great spread between what the farmer sells and what he buys."

"Labor frankly boasts that it will not surrender any of the 'advantages' that it was able to force by virtue of the war conditions, that it has not accepted and will not tolerate any of the financial consequences of war."

Burden Thrown on the Land
"This burden has mostly been thrown upon the land and those who live by it and the farmer neglects his duty if he fails to protest at the artificially high wages and the absurdly low product of organized labor in most of the industries.

"This is basic; still of course nobody is more interested than the farmer that labor should have steady employment. Yet present conditions are unhealthy and cannot last. Labor frankly considers itself engaged in war in which some killing is necessary, as at Herrin, and not to be accounted as murder."

"Collectively, the farmer must not ask for 'advantage' but for an even deal, and in this he has a right to point out that agriculture has national and public aspects as well as private, for farming is not all of agriculture."

"Little can come by way of legislation beyond systems of credits suitable for agriculture and a readjustment of taxation, and both of these are on the way."

"Farmers must learn to work co-operatively, not so much in buying as in selling, and the lesson and methods once learned should be extended even into manufacture, as for example in the fifty-fifty proposition as between farmers and sugar factories in growing sugar beets and manufacturing them into sugar."

Agrigraphs

A wet soil is a cold one. Drainage warms it and permits earlier seedbed preparation.

Promote frugality and industry by example, encouraging manufactures, and avoid dissipation.—George Washington.

Uncle Ab says: "If you can't bring yourself to work with a will at a job, you'd better not try to do it at all."

Since lead arsenate is scarce this year, wise fruit-growers are looking early to their supply for spray purposes.

He that gathereth in summer is a wise son; but he that sleepeth in harvest is a son that causeth shame.—Proverbs 10:5.

Canada field peas will produce an abundance of good hay, almost as palatable as alfalfa. Have you ever tried it?

Be sure you're right, then go ahead and apply to planting. Mistakes made in the spring sometimes can't be corrected for a twelve-month.

One of the worst signs of spring is the smoke from piles of plant material that ought to be turned under to add humus to the soil.

All about raising pigs in New York — you'll find it in Bulletin F. 139, which the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca will send you for the asking.

New York has a lot of pesky weeds, but only four are declared noxious by the state seed law. They are Canada thistle, quack grass, mustards and doddars.

Tidbits From Our School

At the meeting of the executive committee of the Allegany County Athletic Association, held last Saturday at Wellsville, the date of May 21, 1923 was definitely decided upon for the annual track and field meet for the association. The track meet will be held at Wellsville, this year. Base Ball matters were also brought up and the time fixed for playing the girls' championship games of basket ball.

The Parent-Teachers' Association held a business meeting at the school building, last Friday, at 4 o'clock. The next meeting will be held on Wednesday, April 25th, in the evening.

The extreme cold weather last week held off the base ball practice considerably, but the candidates are all eager to show their skill despite the cold. Practice was held both on Monday and Tuesday evening this week, at 5:30 o'clock, on the Silk Mill diamond. Coach Dawson expressed himself by declaring that he was well pleased with both the player's attitude and ability. A new catcher's mitt and one dozen new balls have arrived. Eight league games are scheduled for the local team. The first will be played with the Wellsville nine, Saturday, April 28th. The game will be played on the Silk Mill diamond and a good support from town fans would greatly encourage the team as a whole.

Arbor Day will be observed by the students of the school on April 27th. The school work will stop at 3 o'clock on that afternoon. All are invited to the exercises which will begin at that time.

The cabinet for the month of April is as follows:
Eighth Grade, Birdie Sandberg.
First Year, Juliette Faisant.
Second Year, Mary McPetridge.
Third Year, Ronald Gibbs.
Fourth Year, Alice Edwards.

Monday evening, April 30th, the annual Physical Training Exhibit will be held in the High School gymnasium. The services of excellent male reader have been secured also for that night and those who come will be assured of a wonderful display of talent throughout the exhibition.

Remember this date and watch for further advertisement.
Last week's notes contained the first account of the Senior's trip to Washington, D. C. That account took up the journey down by rail and the first day's events. To-day's account is even more thrilling and beneficial. Watch for these accounts in each week's notes. Each is written by a Senior who enjoyed the trip.

Easter Sunday, April 1, 1923
Sunday morning we all wanted to go to church and so started out for the Congregational. Upon reaching it we found there was not even standing room, so we went on to the President's Church, but could not get in there either. After a long walk around the White House Grounds and the Smithsonian Institute, we were ready for dinner. In the afternoon we walked up the Washington Monument, eight hundred and ninety steps, or up five hundred feet. It is the highest piece of solid masonry in the world. A wonderful view of the city is obtained from the small windows at the top.

The Carceran Art Gallery was very interesting. Here we saw Barye's famous bronze statues. The most noted marble statue was that of "The Veiled Nun," the face delicately carved, yet covered with a thin film of veil. There, too, were many original masterpieces of famous painters, among them "The Helping Hand."

We spent a few minutes at the Smithsonian Institute, visiting the war department where aeroplanes and motors of a German submarine were exhibited. A series of rooms were fitted out in the same manner and with supplies actually used "Over There" as a Base Hospital. A parabolic device for locating enemy planes used during the war, with a huge electrical search light attached, was of interest, especially to the boys.

After lunch we were tired enough to return to the hotel and retired early.

What your store is to be in a year from now exists in your plans for it to-day — in the publicity campaigns you're creating now.
