OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

HOPPERS "BURN" POTATO LEAVES

Pests Migrate from Apples to Potatoes—Controlled by Spray

Recent studies at the New York Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva have revealed the fact that the "burning" of potato vines, so noticeable during July and August, is caused to a large extent by the feeding of small, greenish insects known as leafhoppers, which congregate on the under sides of the leaves. The Station specialists assert that these are the same hoppers that are found on young apple trees earlier in the season and that, as the potatoes appear above the ground, they leave the apples and begin feeding and egg-laying on the potato vines. These pests can be found on the potatoes in all stages of development for the remainder of the season.

Leaves Turn Brown
Formerly "hopperburn" or tipburn as it was called, was thought to be due altogether to the effects of dry weather, but the Station experiments would seem to indicate that the injury is due largely to the feeding of the leafhoppers and is aggravated by long-continued dry spells. Beginning usually at the growing tips of the tender new leaves, the insects suck the juices from the tissues and the tips and margins of the leaves to turn brown and to curl up over upper surface of the leaflets. The injury is greatest during August, when adult and young leafhoppers are present in large numbers and when the rainfall is usually insufficient.

Easily Controlled
Observations in the Station potato fields indicate that hoppers can be held in check with three or four applications of a spray mixture containing 5 pounds of copper sulfate or blue vitriol, 10 pounds of lime, 2½ pounds of powdered lead arsenate, and 50 gallons of water. This spray seems to act largely as a repellent and was effective in checking egg-laying by the adult hoppers. Growers are especially warned to apply the spray to the under sides of the leaves, as that is where the leafhoppers will be found. Spraying from above does not seriously disturb the insects, although a fair degree of protection against tipburn has been obtained when the spray is applied from above.

NOW THEY DEMAND SANITARY GARDEN

Plant Doctors Say that the Home Vegetable Plot Must Have Antiseptic Treatment

Even agricultural journals advocate, when fall comes, two different practices in respect to garden sanitation. Some say to burn all litter and thus prevent carrying over disease spores and insect eggs to the next year. Others say to compost trash and litter and make it add to the garden humus next year. According to the college of agriculture at Ithaca, gardeners should exercise common sense in deciding between these two pieces of advice; in other words, burn leaves, stems, and roots of garden plants and vines; and use tree leaves for compost since they rarely carry vegetable diseases.

A new publication of the college of agriculture says that vegetables can seldom be cured of diseases as are men and animals, and that they must be protected from the attack. Most vegetable diseases are caused by parasitic organisms commonly known as fungi, bacteria, and molds, and they live over winter, in one form or another. Once they gain entrance to the plant it is impossible to destroy them without killing the plants or removing the parts affected.

A recent publication of the college says that the best control measures are cultural practices, crop sanitation, rotation, and sterilizing the soil. Seed treatment and spraying are also preventives. The bulletin gives directions for making various spray mixtures and takes up in alphabetical order, by plants, the commoner diseases to which they are subject, and gives the most effective methods of control. Copies of this, known as E 19, are sent free to those who apply to the New York State college of agriculture at Ithaca as long as the supply lasts.

SOUR CREAM BASIS FOR THIS BAVARIAN DESSERT

Ways of utilizing sour cream in summer desserts are welcomed by all housewives. Especially toothsome and attractive are; raspberry Bavarian cream, and a sour-cream salad dressing, say the home scientists at the state college at Cornell, who give recipes for their making.

To make the Bavarian cream, soak 2 tablespoons of granulated gelatin in cold water. Dissolve by setting the bowl in a pan of boiling water. Add two-thirds cup of sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 1 cup either canned or fresh raspberries. Chill the mixture and when it begins to thicken, fold in the cream, which has been whipped stiff. Turn the pudding into a mold and chill. Dried apricots stewed and put thru a sieve, canned apricots, bananas, strawberries, pineapple or other fruits may be used instead of raspberries.

The sour cream salad dressing makes a pleasant change from the regular French dressing. To make it, whip ½ cup sour cream until it is stiff, and gradually add 1 tablespoon of vinegar or lemon juice. Add 1 tablespoon of powdered sugar, ½ teaspoon mustard, ½ teaspoon salt, and ¼ teaspoon paprika, and beat the dressing well. Fold in the well beaten white of one egg. This makes a light dressing which should be used soon after being made.

MAKE HENS EAT MASH TO LAY SUMMER EGGS

Profits Depend on Good Hot Weather Care—Cut Down Grain to Make 'Em Eat Needed Food

Profits from poultry in New York state are largely determined, it is pointed out by the state agricultural college at Ithaca, by the condition of the flock during the summer. Successful poultrymen, realizing this fact, watch their flocks with special care in hot weather even tho the rush of other summer work.

With birds on the range and egg production falling off, they find it necessary to encourage the hens to eat mash so they can produce eggs. This is accomplished by reducing the amount of scratch grain and feeding mash from hoppers.

Change Grain Ration

Figures from the college show that the best practice is to feed about one quart of scratch grain in the morning and four in the evening to every hundred hens thru August, reducing the evening feeding to three quarts during September and October. From November thru March, the college advises two quarts in the morning and six in the evening for every hundred hens; for April and May, two and five; reducing the amount to one and one-half and five in June, and one and one-half and four and one-half in July.

The Cornell grain formula is 500 pounds cracked corn, 200 pounds barley, 200 pounds wheat, 100 pounds heavy oats. Cornell mash is made of 100 pounds wheat bran, 100 pounds wheat middlings, 100 pounds corn meal, 100 pounds ground oats or ground barley, 100 pounds meat scrap, and 3 pounds salt.

AUGUST ALFALFA SOWING SUCCESSFUL WITH SOME

Altho August is usually considered a little late for sowing alfalfa in most sections of New York, many follow this practice successfully. If the ground is too dry to germinate the seed well, and if it is difficult to get seed-bed prepared earlier in the summer, one might well take a chance on August planting, says the state college at Ithaca.

August seedlings are most likely to be successful on limestone soils. In August sowings, special care should be taken to prepare the best possible seed-bed, and conserve the moisture and keep down weeds by frequent harrowings, in order that the alfalfa seedlings may make maximum growth before the frost.
