by Hamilton B. Williams

KEEP THE FAITH.

"We read life thru the lenses of other people's minds."

This remark of Emerson's shows the reciprocal relation human beings sustain. An enthusiast for living in a community is a great social asset. Every discovery of new eras, every addition to the knowledge of the world, every experiment with its reaction, every quickening of perception, rechant the land we call life. So is the race built.

In Jesus we behold a God-filled man, the quickening spirit of our advancing humanity. Far ahead He stirs the lagging race to its goals.

He is the complete ourselves. When we attain our development we shall be like Him. The divine image shall be full glory of beauty. He shall be satisfied. Every labor of His on our behalf shall be justified when we awake in His likeness.

In talking with Plato we think of the philosopher with Shakespeare of the poet. When we talk with Napoleon we think military matters; with Angelo, art. We recognize these to be phase men, experts, gifted, authority in their line, but we are conscious of their limitations; they are not full-orbed.

But Jesus is full-orbed. He is life, shadowless. We think of no addition that would make Him more complete. He needs no panoply of mystery. His life is the self-revealing light of the world.

Jesus could interpret life as it is. He was friend and thereby He could not be Himself and not be friend and serving man. If He had not been a God-filled man we should not expect a magnetic friendship such as He showed. His friendship is His evidence of being the Son of God.

We are what we can be. If we are friends and comrades, it is because we have the ability. If we were not friends and comrades, it is simply that we have stepped short in some cave and jungle byway. We are not on the main road of affairs.

Fellowship with Jesus fits one to the capacity of world citizenship. If we think in terms of lines, class-lines, view with suspicion and contempt any one who differs from us, if we are hedged by the clan, the creed, by nationalism that exalts blood and tongue, it is evident that our development of mind and heart has been lighted.

There is the liberty of determination along any line of human philosophy and religion. Let us hold fast our beliefs—but be unable to grant others the right of determination is arrogance! The philosophy and religion that shut out sympathetic contact with others would better be considered carefully in the light of the Master's face, who affirmed His brethren to be those who did the will of God. It is significant that He did not equate the will of God in any terms except in those of human sympathy and service.

Bad Risk in Windows.

Nearly every business contributes bits of specialized knowledge to the common fund. It will strike many persons as a curious piece of information that plate-glass insurance companies class windows with black lettering on them as "extra hazardous" risks. The explanation given is that a black surface absorbs the sun's rays. By this means, it is stated, an unequal expansion is produced throughout the plate; and under the influence of a sudden gust of cold or any other quick change of temperature a strain is developed which may break the glass.

Saved.

When labor-saving machinery was first introduced, most people opposed it, on the ground that it would throw many out of jobs. Many an old-time sewing machine salesman still carries buckshot in his legs, fired there by "practical" gents who objected to the devilish device that took work from seamstresses. Today we realize that labor-saving devices merely shift workers into new industries—and raise the standard of living. You see this illustrated in the American telephone system that does the work of 6,000,000 messenger boys.

Bob-White Eats Beetles.

The bob-white eats the adults or beetles of the corn rootworm which lay the eggs that later become larvae or worms and infest the corn. As many as 12 of the beetles, according to the bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture, have been found in the stomach of one bob-white. The red-headed woodpecker, nighthawk, cardinal kingbird and phoebe also eat the beetles and reduce the damage done by the southern corn rootworm.
