Farm and Stock Market

New York, Sept. 14.—The state department of farms and markets report today says the following quotations represent the prices received by commission merchants on the wholesale produce markets of New York City up to 8 a. m.

Western New York Carrots—peaches made their first appearance on the New York market today when a carload from Niagara County sold at $1.10 per bushel basket.

The season's first shipment of Pacific Coast berries arrived on the market this morning. A carload of blackberries from the state of Washington sold from 8 cents to 9 cents per pint. A small express shipment of strawberries from California, brought 15 cents per pint, while red raspberries sold from 10 to 12 cents a pint.

Prices for state Seed pears were slightly lower, partly due to increased receipts. Bartlett pears held on particularly for fancy, large fruit. A carload of Seckel pears in double-headed barrels from Virginia, met a limited demand at $10.00 per barrel, while Hudson River offerings in bushel baskets sold from $1.50 to $1.60 depending upon the size and quality. A carload of No. 2 Bartlett pears from western New York, sold principally at $1.75 per bushel basket. No. 1 stock brought from $2.50 to $2.75.

Fancy cherry crabapples were in exceedingly limited supply and met in active demand. Sales ranged from $4.50 to $6.00 per bushel basket. There was practically no demand for state plums. The market was extremely dull and weak.

Receipts of basket apples were liberal, especially from Virginia, Delaware and New Jersey. Fancy large sized well-colored stock, particular green fruit, met a more active demand. Prices ranged as follows: per bushel basket, "A" grade: Duchess 2 1/2 inch and upward 75c to $1 for Virginia, northwestern Greenings 2 1/2 inch, $1.40 to $1.75; Stark 2 1/2 inch, $1.37 1/2 to $1.50; Delaware Waltham 2 1/2 inch, $1.50 to $1.75. A carload of Virginia northwestern Greenings in double headed barrels sold as high as $10.00 per barrel for "A" grade 2 inch stock.

Lettuce Market

JAMESTOWN HAS WILDMAN

Jamestown, Aug. 28.—Clad in goat skins and with long, tangled black hair falling down over his shoulders a "wildman" is roaming the hills on the outskirts of Jamestown, according to a report made to the police by several residents of the city who have seen the man. Two young women excitedly telephoned the police Friday morning that they had seen a man in the bushes bordering Camp street extension just outside the city line. The man had a dirty cloth wound around his head and was absolutely naked aside from the cloth they said. He paid no attention to the women and seemed to be foraging for food, they declared. Police scoured the neighborhood but found no trace of the man.

Later in the day other reports of the "wildman" began to come in. Several respectable citizens declare that they saw a man, nude except for some sort of an animal skin thrown over his shoulders, prowling around in the bushes bordering the same road. The man's hair was long and matted, the citizens declared, and his bronzed skin seemed to indicate that he has long been exposed to the summer sun. The police are continuing their investigation but have found no clue to the whereabouts of the "wildman's lair."

Every day sees us nearing the end and wishing we were back at the beginning.

HERE COMES DOCTOR DOLITTLE

« The quaintest, merriest, most lovable genius of the age. The queer little doctor with his amazing adventures—his family of curious pets—his voyages to animal lands—his hair-raising escapes with the aid of the wise beasts and birds—is like no other character you ever read about. "Alice in Wonderland" is equaled at last.

« Read the first of Hugh Lofting's Dr. Dolittle stories and you'll be hungry for the rest. Just one chuckle after another, and the kind of fun that warms your heart.

« They are great—the cleverest thing of the kind ever printed. You will read them yourself, laugh with the children about them and then hurry to tell all your friends to get acquainted with Dr. Dolittle right away.

« And the pictures—drawn by Hugh Lofting—plenty of them, and just as quaint and whimsical as the stories.
