When The Coolidge Boys Arrived

Calvin, President Coolidge, John, Mrs. Coolidge

This newspaper, with others in big cities and the country, printed paragraphs about the two Coolidge boys that were to play on the White House lawn. Well, here they are, a surprise for newspaper correspondents, as both of them are taller than the President and their mother. On the left is Calvin, Jr., who was working in a tobacco field near Northampton, Mass., when his father was sworn in as President. John, his brother, was in a Military Training camp. They arrived at the White House last week, the first time since their father became President.

Farm and Stock Market

New York, Sept. 17.—The state department of farms and markets report today says the following quotations represent prices on sales by commission merchants on the wholesale produce markets of New York City up to 8 a. m.

Western New York peaches were considerably more plentiful today on the New York City markets and prices showed a downward tendency. While the bulk of the offerings showed good quality and condition, the fruit was lacking in color. Elbertas ranged from $2.25 to $3.50, mostly $2.50 to $2.75 per bushel basket. Crawfords and St. Johns sold from $1.25 to $1.37½, Niagaras at mostly $1.75.

The market generally held steady for fancy, well colored soft red varieties of apples as well as large sized green fruit. The receipts of both barreled and basket stock were liberal.

Grade 2½ inch Welthies sold from $5.00 to $6.50; McIntosh $6.50 to $7.50, and Greenings $5.00 to $6.25 per double headed barrel.

Prunes from Western New York were more plentiful, but continued to meet sharp competition from shipments from the western states. Felshurgs, in half bushel basket, sold from $1 to $1.25, while four quart baskets brought from 25 to 30c.

The supplies of crabapples were more liberal with the demand only moderate. The market held steady for fancy. Prices ranged from $4 to $5 per bushel basket for cherry crabapples, and from $2.50 to $3 for Hyslop.

Western New York plums were in more liberal supply, and altho the demand was limited, the market held fairly steady for fruit in sound condition. Sales ranged as follows, per bushel basket: Thompson $1.50 to $2.50; Reinclaude $2 to $2.23; Grand Duke $1.50; Lombard $1.25 to $1.50.

Most of the Bartlett pears received on the market today from western New York sections consisted of small sized stock and met a rather limited demand. Bushel baskets sold from $2.75 to $3.75 mostly $3 to $3.50.

Hudson River basket Worden grapes sold from 80 cents to $1 per basket, mostly 85 to 90 cents.

"The task before us is to make the character and teaching of Jesus more vital and creative than ever before. We must use his educating personality to chasten every wayward activity and to unfold every dormant human capacity. We must bring to bear his self-control and self-sacrifice to extinguish the animal selfishness. We must apply his spirit to human society as an organic enthusiasm. We must bring his life to bear upon human hearts to make them pure, heroic, loving, and fruitful in every good work. The real human Jesus will be more loved, honored, and obeyed than the Christ of the creeds.
