A Giant Airfish
Mr. Eel-Worm is Here
The Devil's Ink Stain
Your Eye and Auto

By Arthur Brisbane

The United States built a giant dirigible, in ENGLAND. It fell, killed 62. Another, built in ITALY, fell, killed 34. Last week, the United States Zeppelin, ZR-1, built HERE, by the American Government, flew over New York and started for Philadelphia, having first traveled 100 miles over New Jersey. Those who think the Government can't do anything and must always hire private assistance, take notice.

That great machine, looking like a silver coated fish, slowly traveling thru the air above New York, was a warning to the six millions of that city, and the whole country.

In the morning, with the sun obscured by clouds, the air giant was barely visible. Had the captain chosen to go a few thousand feet higher, it would have been absolutely invisible.

Such a traveler coming out of the misty dawn, above the edge of the ocean, would first make itself known by dropping enough bombs to destroy New York, enough deadly gas to kill three-quarters of the inhabitants.

The next war will be an air war. This country should be ready for it.

Important. Bad news for farmers in rapid spreading of the eel-worm disease, imported from South Africa. The eel-worm, fatal to alfalfa and other plants, in two years has spread from Eastern Oregon to California and Colorado.

Kansas, great alfalfa State, Colorado and other states, should fight this enemy as they would Asiatic cholera. The tiny deadly pest might cost farmers hundreds of millions yearly.

Yesterday you could buy a thousand million marks for $100. In 1914, one thousand million marks were worth $250,000,000. German money, then worth two and one-half million dollars, is worth $1 now. That's what war does when you lose. But that won't discourage the next war-like nation.

The castle of Wartburg is closed for the lack of money to keep it in repair. The public can no longer see the room in which Luther translated the Bible, nor the big black spot on the wall made by him when he threw the inkwell at the devil. American Lutherans perhaps will contribute to repairing the old castle and supply ink to freshen up their ink-stains, which have doubtly been made fresh many a time in the past. It is a pity to let old stories die.

American school children saved $9,500,000 in the last school year. The money is nothing, the saving habit is everything.

To teach children that poverty is slavery, and can be avoided by reasonable saving, is the first duty of parents. The second duty is to teach children that after they have saved, they must help others.

Exercise your eye muscles, and avoid automobile accidents. That's the advice given by Dr. Needles. When you are in a car going forty miles an hour, you go about fifty-eight feet every second. Unless your eye can roll from one side to the other at least twice in a second, you can't keep track of both sides of the road and travel safely at that speed. Prizefighters, fliers, automobile drivers, all require eye exercises to strengthen the eye muscles. At best, they get weak with old age. And a closed car requires better eyes than an open car.

The Prince of Wales, under the name of Baron Renfrew, is in Canada resting. In spite of his disguise a crowd met him when he arrived. The English know the value of Canada now, and in future. The real England may be Canada some time, with British Isles maintained as a central business office in Europe.

As the great Roman Empire saw the seat of power change from Italy to Constantinople, so Britons of another century may see their imperial Parliament and whatever is left of the royal family transplanted in Montreal or Australia.

LETTER FROM DR. J. P. CLEARY

near. Some have their one-eye glass or monocle jammed tightly against their eye. Disdainfully they look upon common folk. These kind of Germans are chips of the old block. They remind one of the atmosphere of Prussianism, without which society would be better off.

The rank and file of the German people, law abiding, progressive, energetic, patriotic, God-fearing people command respect, but those Germans belonging to the old aristocracy military and royalty should be banished forever from the ranks of decent society.

I traveled from Frankfurt to Berlin in the company of four hostile, sinister bearing men who bore the unmistakable stamp of the barracks. Two of them wore the insignia of the "Hakenkreuz," the secret society which is interested in sabotage in the Ruhr and Rhineland. They were the "hard-boiled" type. During the several hours journey they eyed me many times, frequently in an embarrassing way. Their conversation was in a subdued tone.

"Presume you are an Englishman," said one to me finally, in perfect sounding English.

"Ah," he rejoined with a smile, "No," I replied, "I am an American."

"Americans are good, as good as any people on earth, altruistic and generous. I really like Americans. But please pardon me if I say that I cannot say the same about former President Wilson. He was a Pontius Pilate to the German people," he continued, his face becoming serious and fixed, "he got us to lay down our arms on the 14 points, and then after we did that the 14 points were discarded, and no mention was made of them. When we had given up our arms and other means of fighting, it would have been absurd to attempt to fight, and now see the treatment they are doling out to us."

"Did you pass thru the Ruhr section?" he inquired.

"Yes," I replied, "but it was during the night and I could not see anything."

"Ah, that is too bad," he came back, "for things there are in awful shape. Are you aware, sir, the French have many thousands of black soldiers there? Yes, thousands and thousands of nigger soldiers," he repeated with greater emphasis, as if it was a crime to have colored soldiers.

I was glad to get away from those fellows. One in particular, the man with whom I was conversing mostly, seemed to be too desirous to become friendly. He asked me many questions, some rather pointed. He offered me cigarettes, asked me to dine with him, where I was going to Berlin, how long I intended to remain, etc. etc.

On the way to Berlin much evidence of an abundant harvest could be seen on every side. The train passed field after field of ripened corn, newly harvested. Row after row of women could be seen working in the farms, those any where near the train pausing to smile at the passengers. So far as my unaided eye could see there was not one acre or even a portion of an acre of land which was not in cultivation. Forest after forest of well kept trees were passed. The trees presented a queer picture with the lower two-thirds shorn of leaves, in order that the upper third would receive all the nourishment, and in that way add to its height and development. The forests were as cleanly kept as a parlor. I was told that before a tree, even in the remote sections, can be cut down a permit must be obtained from the authorities, and a new tree must be planted in its place. German farmers are in a flourishing condition, and with the depreciated mark which prevents the purchase of supplies abroad, they are masters of the situation. The small towns, and farm buildings were in marked contrast with those which may yet be seen in the ruined areas of France and Belgium. There is not another country in the world, not even the United States, more intensely developed or organized than Germany.

To Be Continued Next Week.

New Materials

Arrive in Time for Fall Home Sewing

Perhaps ones dressmaker is a gem or one herself is clever at frock-making. Then not a moment should be lost before these unusual new silks, woolsens and velvets are chosen from and things are humming on their way to fashionable winter suits, blouses, skirts, dresses and coats. Even an amateur can create some of the simpler garments that are modish. Such worthwhile and fashion-correct fabrics will help her tremendously. And too, Butterick Patterns are here to help you.

Woolens

Likable English Weaves

Sports clothes—skirts, suits and coats. That is the first suggestion of these new Woolens, so gaily striped, so smartly plaided. Twills and reps are faintly striped or shadow plaided. New tan and grey camel's hair cloths await quick transformation into wrap-around skirts. Interesting velours and chinchilla cloths promise other warm, attractive clothes for one's own and the children's winter days. All marked at most reasonable prices.

Fall Silks

For Glorious New Costumes

Silks—the new season uses them and wants them again and again. Innumerable dull and glossy crepes for simple little frocks, taffetas, pebble back charmeuse, plaided silks, corded weaves, metal brocades—these are the new materials that pledge themselves to each frock's smart success.

All the Little Things for Needle Flying Days

Winter sewing run-ning smoothly means that every necessary item is handy on the machine or in the sewing cabinet on the first dressmaking day. Avoid the annoyance of being without matching silks, trimming buttons, linings and the smaller articles by visiting the Notion Section at once.

We Invite You to Our Concert

Every Friday afternoon we will give a Concert of the New Victor Records on our Main Floor, giving you an opportunity to hear the new records as soon as they are issued each week. Our first Concert will be the coming Friday afternoon and we hope you will attend.

Main Floor

Fall has Settled Upon Velvet

These soft, richly colored velvets will lend themselves beautifully to new draping effects and fashion exquisite frocks for day and evening wear. They range from chiffon weight with fine chenille patterning to heaviest type, plain or brocaded. In vivid browns tinged with red, royal blue, new greens and black.

'A Frock is no Smarter Than the Corset Beneath'

How important then, to the woman who desires to register an impression of charming poise, that her selection of a corset be made from among the smart and practical models shown at Tuttle & Rockwell's.

For only with the right corset can nature's curves be subtly and gently coaxied to follow the mode of the moment.

Lightly boned, front laced or back laced, exceedingly dainty, our corsets assures a comfortable and fashionable figure foundation for the current vogue.

Also—Here Your Corset is Fitted With Extreme care.

We carry both the Modart and Henderson Corsets.
