SIGN BOARDS

CROSS roads signs are becoming common in many sections of the country. They cost little, and yet are of great value to the motorist or other person traveling thru the country.

A few years ago there were practically no such signs in our American communities or rural districts.

When our soldiers went to France they were amazed at the ease with which they could find any city or town merely by reading the signs posted at every cross or fork in a road and following the directions thereon.

On their return home the boys commenced to talk of these signs and their advantages, and of the disadvantage of having none of our own.

Then the newspapers took it up, and the people got busy, and now we have signboards everywhere.

The automobile has done much toward bringing these signs into general use, but it is the service man who has spurred the public on to decorating the rural districts with them.

Are there any corner or cross roads unmarked in this country? If so, why are we still out of date?

THE BEAM IN OUR EYE

SOME people are so busy criticizing their neighbors' children they have no time in which to properly train their own.

To hint that such is a fact is to make them an enemy, though perhaps they know that it is true.

Then again, the average parent can not see anything wrong in his or her child. We all have a beam in our eye, and that beam is never greater than when it concerns our own children.

But it is not so only with regard to our children.

Our car is the only make, our horse is the fleetest of foot, our chickens are of the best strain, no other bird dog is as good as ours and there never was such a pet as our own cat.

Whether it is children, or the horse, or car, or prize hen, or the dog or the cat, the beam is always there. Some of us even think that our husbands or wives are the best after years of married life.

If it belongs to our neighbor there is fault to be found. If it is ours it is perfect. Some of us even think that our husbands or wives are the best after years of married life.

And since we plead guilty to the charge you have no reason to feel resentful at our remarks.

A list of the committees for the Masonic & Eastern Star Fair will appear in next week's paper.

A timely report to the classified columns will avert threatening losses from migrating tenants!

REVOLUTION SANS BLOOD.

ARE WE face to face with an era of revolution without bloodshed? Are our battles of the future to be fought with the tongue and not with the sword?

During the war the German door was opened and he Kaiser was politely requested to close it as he passed out. He did so, and no blood was shed.

Hungary decided to live apart from the Austro-hungarian empire—and it did so. The emperor of Austria objected, but didn't fight.

Possibly that put strange thoughts into the minds of the Austrian people. At any rate, they decided they didn't need a family ornament in the shape of an emperor, and Karl and his empress departed for other climes.

Bavaria and other federated German states caught the fever and their rulers made way for government by the people.

Greece tired of Constantine and he faded away, leaving no crimson trail behind.

Other foreign rulers of greater or less degree decided that the going was good, and forgot to leave any fields of battle strewn with the dead and dying.

Mussolini has captured Italy by the use of his tongue and now rules with a rod of iron.

Eight Spanish generals and one admiral have tired of the rule of their cabinet ministers and have kicked them incontinently into the gutter without firing a shot, altho the king is graciously permitted to remain as long as he continues a good Indian. He can sympathize with his brother monarch of Italy, who is under the Mussolini thumb.

In every direction we see crowns either tottering or kicked into the discard—governments shoved aside without so much as a by your leave.

And no fight, no loss of life, no destruction of property—just a polite "Get out" from one party and a hasty getting out by the other.

It's novel, but it's encouraging, to say the least.

Perhaps the next time this country gets into a scrap we will be able to win our point by unmuzzling the congressional mouth and bidding it roar.

It's a great world when nobody loses a leg.

CHARLES WRIGHT SUICIDES

Charles Wright of Alfred formerly of Elm Valley, killed himself at his home in that village last Friday morning. The family were startled by a shot, followed closely by the thud of a falling body, from his room and rushed up stairs to find him dead, having shot himself thru the chest, setting on the floor was the butt of a rifle between his feet. It is believed that continued ill health caused a temporary fit of insanity. For several years Mr. Wright was manager of the Borden Milk Station at Elm Valley, moving to Alfred about two years ago for better educational advantages, and had been employed in the Borden plant at Alfred Station. A few weeks ago he purchased a grocery in Alfred. He is survived by his wife, one son, Miles Wright, a daughter, Mrs. Fred Peterson of Jamestown, formerly Miss Genevieve Wright. Funeral services were conducted from the home of his father, John Wright of Scio.
