"We Must Have a Dining Room Like That!"

HE was escorting his fiancée home from a dinner to which one of her young married friends had asked them. The completeness and charm of the home, and dreams of their own home-to-be were uppermost in the thoughts of each. And she was saying: "I never saw such a pretty dining-room. We must have one just like it. I'd love to have other people admire it just as we admire Edith's dining-room, wouldn't you?"

Women appreciate the importance of good taste, and our furniture is selected to meet the demands of just such discriminating home furnishers.

The Romance of Furniture

ANDIRONS are still called "fire dogs" because the first ones were usually ornamented with huge dog's heads.

The Little Things of the Home are the Important Things

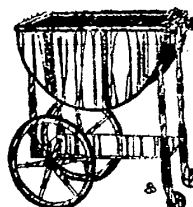

The little things that make for comfort in a home are important to the busy home-maker and we have prepared countless suggestions in the way of small household appliances that make for efficiency.

Here are pots and pans, gemming with Ambrosia Dishes, from an individual breakfast set to a dinner service. Glassware, shining brightly. Nests of bowls—or nests of tables, for that matter—in other words, everything that makes a home comfortable and enjoyable.

Hospitality Becomes a Pleasure With a Tea-Wagon

No more hustling off to the kitchen for all the eatable things you need. Just arrange them on your tea wagon, wheel it out into your living room, and serving afternoon tea or bridge refreshments is unburdened and enjoyed by you as much as your guests. One of mahogany, or wicker, rubber-tired, and with a glass tray at top and bottom, removable, to facilitate serving.
