OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

HOMEMAKERS MAY SAVE ENERGY IN IRONING

Pressing not Needed for Some Garments—Proper Hanging on Line Keeps Sheets Smooth.

Much unnecessary time and energy are spent ironing garments which do not need to be pressed to look well.

It is only a waste of time to iron dish towels, and the ironed towel will not absorb moisture as well as it had been allowed to dry in the sun and air. The towel will be smooth enough if folded carefully when taken off the line. Stockings and woollen underwear also may be left unironed.

Sheets hung on the line, with all creases out, and removed from the line so that no new creases are added, may be put away without ironing. It will improve their appearance to iron just the hems.

If clothes have had to be dried in the house without sunlight, it is wiser to help sterilize them by ironing, the sunlight is a better antiseptic.

Have Enough Irons
The homemaker should have enough irons on the stove when she is ironing so that she will not have to wait for a hot one. The ironing board should be as near the stove as comfort will allow. An electric or gas iron generally pays for its initial cost by its saving of time. The board should be firm. If it is the kind that attaches to the wall, care should be taken that the supporting rod does not prevent shirts being fitted over the board.

Sitting on a high stool while ironing will save much energy. The board should be high enough so that when it is necessary to stand, one may be kept erect without hurting the back.

METHOD OF PROTECTING FRUIT BUSHES SUGGESTED

Bending Over Plants Until Canes Touch the Ground is Advocated by Growers.

After freezing weather has prevailed for some time, the person who grows bush fruits of any kind should "lay down" the bushes, say growers who have been most successful in their culture. By "laying down" is meant bending the plants over until the canes touch the ground where they are fastened by stakes, nails, or even by weighting with a few shovelfuls of earth.

Some growers find it is advisable to loosen the earth around one side of the bushes so that they may be bent over more easily. Added protection may be given by covering the bushes with straw held in place by earth.

Currants and gooseberries, being among the hardiest of all fruits grown in New York State, need no winter protection. Of the brambles, red raspberries are the hardiest, the columbian purple cane withstands the cold fairly well, while black raspberries should be ranked in hardiness between the red varieties and the blackberry, which is the most tender of all the bush fruits.

Many varieties of grapes and bush fruits will need winter protection in the coldest sections of the state where the thermometer falls to 30 degrees below zero, but in the regions where these fruits are grown commercially, such protection is not necessary.

NEW YORK'S ALFALFA ACREAGE

New York had more acres of alfalfa in 1919 than any other state east of the Mississippi. Michigan now claims three times the New York acreage in 1919. Wisconsin also claims a big acreage increase the last four years. Are you doing your part to keep New York at the top of the list? Remember that good alfalfa and clover hay are a big factor in economic milk production.

The childhood shows the man. As morning shows the day.—Milton.

Green spinach harmonizes with the red cheeks it helps make.

Aunt Ada's axioms: White collars and eggs are alike; they are either all right or they aren't.

Another thing to be thankful for is that no longer is it a mark of hospitality to overlook the table.

Good magazines stored in the attic do no one any good. If passed on while still reasonably fresh, two families can benefit.

The jam closet is just full of Christmas presents. All the little jars need is a tissue paper wrapper and a bit of bright ribbon.

Packed full of sound sense about house planning is bulletin H 131 which the state agricultural college at Ithaca will send you for the asking.

Agrigraphs

Green manure crops are those grown for plowing in the green state to enrich the soil.

Helping the boy to build his own led is combining pleasure with profit for both yourself and the boy.

The most that a farmer gets out of a poorly arranged barn is plenty of exercise at a time when it's too costly.

Uncle Ab says that it is better to know how to do one thing when it's needed than a lot of things when they're not.

In one New York county, a survey showed the farmers who had a high school education made $304 a year more than those who had been only to district schools. Schooling does seem to pay.

"A study of the work to be done helps in doing it better and with less loss of time," is the way one farmer summed up the value of the correspondence course he had just finished from the state college of agriculture at Ithaca.

Great thots hallow any labor. Today I earned 75 cents heaving manure out of pen, and made a good bargain of it. If the ditcher mused while how he may live uprightly, the ditching spade and turf knife may be engraved on the coat of arms of his prosperity.—Thoreau.
