COME ON MRS. WINKLE

Did you ever hear of Samuel C. Inneaster, one of the country's a piece of cardboard up in front leading civil engineers? Fifty-nine of his face. After months of painty years ago he was a poor boy in the poor little Southern town of Magnolia, Mississippi, the suffered an accident that resulted in total paralysis of his whole body. Country and city doctors said that he could never be cured and that death was only a question of weeks. Bu'. Sam thought differently. He could hear their words, but he couldn't talk.

Sam discovered that he could may be couldn't talk.

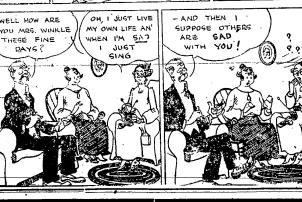

Sam discovered that he could move his lips and hold fast to a pencil stuck between his teeth. He began to practice drawing by moving the pencil with his tongue and
