

WASHINGTON--

the Nation's Pilot to Freedom and Supremacy

Possessing a vision of a great and lasting nation and a flawless faith in the ability of the Colonies to triumph and develop, George Washington truly earned that unique place in American history accorded to him by "Light Horse Harry" Lee at the time of his death--

"First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Greatness in Washington developed as responsibilities multiplied. Difficult problems constantly came before him--the whole future of the Colonies rested upon him. Always he served with a distinction that set him high above other men of his day.

To Washington the patriot, the warrior, the first President of the United States, the statesman, the private citizen, America pays the highest tribute of honor and reverence. His most ambitious vision of a powerful nation has been far surpassed by the country whose founding and early years he guided so well.

This bank will be closed all day Friday, February 22nd, in observance of Washington's Birthday.

AN INTELLIGENCE TEST FOR BIBLE READERS

Try this for Sunday morning when you must stay from church and Sunday School. There's just one way to go about it, and that is to take the examination without preparation, and without any assistance from books or from one another. Did you say anything like this: "The preacher spoke about Sodom and Gomorrah as cities of the plain. I had always thought they were husband and wife."

Where in the Bible is the original of these references taken from novels, essays, poets and the general run of conversation. Never mind chapter and verse; just give the connection: "Abraham's Bosom," "The Apple of the Eye," "Drawing His bow at a Venture," "The Potter's Field," "Bricks Without Straws," "Cools of Fire," "Armageddon," "Slaughter of the Innocents," "Flowing with Milk and Honey," "The Second Mile," "Wars and Rumors of Wars," "Bread Upon the Waters."

The Bible has had a profound influence on English literature and speech. Give the Biblical origin of the following titles of stories and poems: "The Inside of the Cup," "Back to Methuselah," "A Certain Rich Man," "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," "The Destruction of Sennacherib," "Paradise Lost," "The Appeal to Caesar," "Tarry Thou Till I Come," "The Other Wise Man," "Rags and Tristles," "Samson and Delilah," "The Jericho Road," "Saul," "The Widows' Mite," "The House of Longage," "A Bill of Divorcement."

More next week.
