

Grandma Used a Music Box— Granddaughter Tunes in the Radio!

There's the same wide gulf between the well-worn black pocket-book or the soft-feathered bolster depository for surplus cash of Grandmother's day and the simple, convenient method of Banking by mail in 1924.

This institution today serves many people who live out of town—and some even who live in other states.

You, too, can enjoy this 20th century method of banking, no matter how far away you live, or work. Just a letter or a phone call, if you can't stop in, will bring full information.

—Robert Ball of Wellsville owes his life to the quick shot and action of brakeman Howard Logue of Hornell. Ball attempted to drive a truck for the Wellsville Upholstering Company across the tracks near the freight depot. Crossing the first he did not see the string of cars coming on the second track. Logue was on the step of the oncoming freight car, realizing there was not time to signal the engineer, with a quick movement, reached the air cock and set the brake. The heavy train stopped just at the instant with the truck. The front end and cab of which were crushed. Ball was unable to extricate himself from the wreck but was assisted free by those nearby—who were astounded to find his injuries to consist of cuts from the broken glass in the cab.

BURRITT M. AUSTIN

Burritt M. Austin was born March 8, 1857 in Andover, New York. His death occurred January 27, 1924, at Apache, Oklahoma. He grew to young manhood at his home in Andover, New York, attended Alfred college at Alfred, New York and taught school. Also he attended a musical conservatory at Friendship, N. Y. He was converted at the age of twenty years and united with the Methodist church and was active in Epworth League and church work. He was a jeweler and optometrist. He sold his store in Belmont, N. Y., to come west with his parents thirty-six years ago. He made three visits to his native state and town. He was engaged in business in different towns in Oklahoma and was always considerate of the interests of others and had many friends.

He leaves to mourn his loss, one brother, Fred Austin, two sisters, Alice Austin and Mrs. Fred Hann of McFall, three nieces, Elmina Bauer, Ruth and Marguerite Austin, all of Rochester, N. Y., and a niece, Gertrude Buchanan, of Lawton, Okla., and nephews, Fred R. Hann, Jr., of Joliet, Ill., Claire S. Hann, Kansas City, and Burritt P. Hann, McFall, Mo.

Funeral services were conducted at the Methodist church at McFall, Friday, February 1st by Rev. Smart of Jameson, Mo. At the cemetery in McFall, services were conducted by the Masons, where he was laid to rest to await the morning of a new day.

What God Says about—Helping Him

"And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Uzzah."

Don't you ever think that you can help God. Uzzah thought he could and he died for it.

This is the story:—King David, recently come to the throne of Israel, wanted the Ark of God in Jerusalem and he set out to get it. It was put on an ox-cart and brought to Nachon's threshing floor, and Uzzah when the oxen shook the cart put out his hand to steady the ark and took hold of it, "and God smote him there for his error and he died by the Ark of God."

He wanted to help God, not impiously,—just irreverently,—just as though God and he were doing that particular piece of business,—just as though he were almost on the same level with God, and ever since that day he has been an example of the fact that God needs no such assistance from any man.

But you say, doesn't God accept the co-operation of men to accomplish His purposes? No, he doesn't; He takes possession of men and works in and through them, but He is the only worker. So don't you think you can help God. The best you can do is to place your life at the disposal of God as Peter did his boat. In it and from it Jesus Christ will work.
