Home Craft Tales

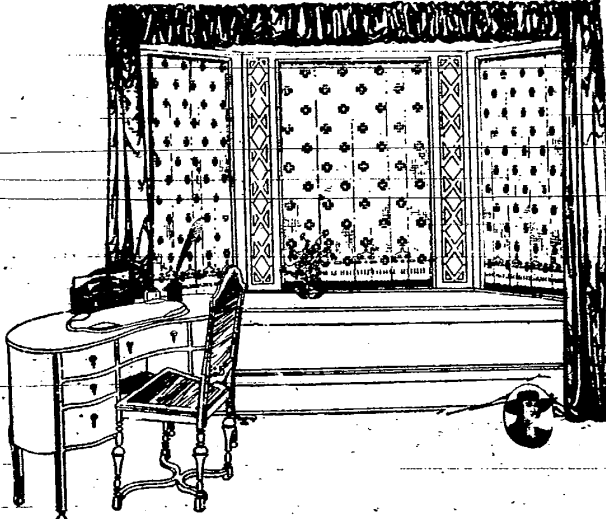

From its earliest settlements, back in the struggling days of the first colonists—when the house was not only a shelter, but a stronghold from the Indians and wild beasts of the forest, and a gathering place for festivities—America has been a country of homes.

And what rugged, durable homes they are. Many of the first ones are still standing. The old Pickering home in Massachusetts, for example, has been occupied continuously by the same family since 1690.

And what famous homes! For instance, Mount Vernon, the home of Washington—and Monticello, the beautiful estate of Thomas Jefferson—and scores of others, steeped in history and tradition—dear to all Americans.

In no other country will you find so many types of homes—rambling farm-houses, cozy cottages, colonial types, bungalow types, all sorts of town types, luxurious apartment homes all types imaginable. In no other land will you find such a large percentage of homes so comfortably and tastefully furnished. America, indeed, is a country of homes.

And in the furnishing of the homes in the busy section of America it serves, C. F. Babcock & Co., Inc., has played an important part. And for the new homes to be furnished the coming season, and the established homes that need a freshening touch, its stocks are
