Mr. Jackson of Indiana.
Southwest and Northwest.
A Webber and Fields Offer?
A Tree for Tombstone.

Edward Jackson, endorsed by the Ku Klux Klan of Indiana, swept the State for the Governorship nomination. He got more votes than all five of the other candidates put together. Lew Shank, Mayor of Indianapolis, most important candidate against Jackson and enemy of the Klan, was wiped out 10 to 1.

This election is important outside of Indiana, and indicates that the Ku Klux Klan has gained rather than lost strength, and will play an important part in the coming national election.

An El Paso bank closes its doors, in the Southwest, that should know only prosperity. The other day an important bank in the Northwest was in trouble and only saved by merging with another bank.

Farmers can't make a living, and while everything is done for railroads and other corporations, to make sure that their stockholders get dividends, nothing is done for farmers except to give them fatherly advice.

Something better must be done before long or there will be trouble in more banks, and trouble in two old political parties.

Henry Ford bid real money for Muscle Shoals, agreed to manufacture fertilizers and the farmers know that he would manufacture them.

Many other concerns are now bidding, but not real money. One bid offers one hundred and twenty million dollars, and reminds you of the conversation between Messrs. Weber and Fields, burlesque actors, in the old days.

"I'd give $5,000 for that dog," says one. "But, Mike, we ain't got $5,000," says the other.

"I know it, but ain't it a good offer?"

Ford offered to pay the Government 248 millions, during the period of his lease, and he has the money.

Watchmakers assembled in Chicago predict that presently automatic clocks and watches will automatically get time by radio. The impulse will be sent out and the watch in your pocket will automatically adjust itself.

If only we grew individually and mentally as rapidly as we grow scientifically and mechanically, but alas, we don't. Men with intelligence enough to make a watch and then set it correctly by radio, haven't intelligence enough to get rid of the superstitions that make them hate and kill each other.

While Japan tells us how much insulted they feel because we don't let them come into the United States, the Chinese are warning Matsui, Japan's foreign minister, that they, the Chinese, are much insulted because they are not allowed to settle on Japanese soil. Somebody in Japan must lack a sense of humor.

In Presidential primary election of Haverhill, Massachusetts, 693 men, 121 women, took the trouble to vote out of 17,000 registered voters. Proud Americans seem to lack interest in politics. Had a trained chimpanzee walked a tight rope stretched above the principal street of Haverhill, on primary day, beating a drum as he walked, all the 17,000 registered voters would have been out to see that chimpanzee.

There's excitement in France about the charge that soldiers' bones have been collected on battlefields by junk dealers, ground up and sold for fertilizer. The idea is abominable to many, therefore the official denial is welcome.

But what better use could be made of our "remains" than to fertilize the earth when we are gone? To be buried at the foot of a fine tree, with a little brass tablet on the tree trunk, "John Jones is proud to help this tree grow" would be a pleasanter resting place than being tucked away with other skeletons in a vault.

Of two American geese talking to each other, often one is asking, "What do you think about business? Will the national election disturb prosperity, etc., etc." The United States hasn't started on its prosperity. With Mellon in the Treasury the nation's debts are cut down. Meanwhile the people are saving and putting away thirty million dollars a day, in savings banks and good investments. Why worry?

Issue Bulletin to Merchants and Rural Chambers of Commerce.

As a paper published for farm families, Farm and Home has a very keen interest in where and how farmers spend their money, and it is because of this that the editors are anxious to co-operate in every way with merchants who have a large trade with farmers, says a bulletin from that paper.

We believe that there should be a better team work between town and country in promoting their mutual interests, for that community is unfortunate whose citizens feel no obligation to their home town—it matters not whether they live in the town or on a farm near it.

It must be borne in mind, however, that the duty of farmers and their families to patronize home merchants is not any greater than the duty of the home merchants to deserve such patronage and support. That merchant is himself unfortunate who feels that people have to ride with him. Such a spirit and feeling of self-sufficiency carries trade to cities and to mail order houses. Fair play begets fair play and generosity is infectious.

It is the purpose of this bulletin to suggest ways and means of developing mutual confidence between merchants, towns-people and farmers to the end that all may gain in prosperity and therefore in those things which prosperity makes possible.

The Importance of Local Newspaper. The keystone to the development of the right sort spirit in a community is undoubtedly a good local newspaper.

Nearly always the newspaper man is the sort of person who is anxious to help in every way towards the upbuilding of his community and the more prosperous he is the more he can do.

Regardless of the undeniable public service he renders, however, it is mighty seldom that you find a publisher soliciting advertising these days on the basis of the business man's supposed obligation to "support the paper."

He knows that the merchant is under no more of an obligation to use advertising space with him than is the farmer to buy from the local merchant.

He knows too, that he offers local business men something that is just as valuable as the merchandise they offer their customer.

And he knows that the individual merchant can capitalize on the newspaper's influence only in proportion to that merchant's use of the advertising columns.

Where the newspaper is prosperous you will find, nine towns out of ten, prosperous merchants.

Of course spasmodic advertising, "as the spirit moves," doesn't get very far but regular advertising brings home the bacon.

Use your local newspaper regularly.

WORK

In city streets, on country highways, in farm structures and industrial plants, small and large, concrete is being more and more used. Why?

First because it meets the modern necessity for economy. Atlas is cheaper today than thirty years ago. And second because man's work must be safeguarded.

Structures built with Atlas protect both the worker and his product, for they are permanent and fire-safe. Tell your building material dealer about your building plans and ask him about materials. He can be of real help.
