What God Saps about-The Way to be Wise

"If any man ameng you seemeth to be wise in this age, let him become a fool that he may he wise""

It is true that the above saying of God is limited to Christian believers, for it says, "any man among you." But if a believer credits himself foolishly with wisdom, how much more foolish is it for an unbulgant to do an for an unbeliever to do so.

How, then, shall any man become wise? God says become a

How shal a man become a fool? Is there anything more fool-How shal a man become a tool? Is there anyoning more roomish, according to world standards, than for a man to believe that the blood of Jesus Christ shed on Calvary, two thousand years ago cleangeth him now from all sin? That certainly is a fool's job, and God says become that sort of a fool and you will be wise, and considerable the standard of the believing away day and you will he wiser cays become that sort of a 1001 and you will be wise, and continue that sort of fool, believeing every day, and you will be wiser.

For God says elsewhere that the foolishness of God is wiser than men. If God tells a man to he the kind of a fool that I have just outlined, he will find, if he obeys, flast what he had thought was God's foolishness was really beginning of true wisdom.
