of large-size eggs thru the most profitable egg marketing season of the year.

This procedure of flock segregation may start in August. Regular selection may be made every fifteen days, starting about August 15. By this plan, every opportunity is provided for the birds to recuperate, gain their body weight, and store up a surplus of fat in preparation for the winter laying.

Selection should of course be continued thru September, but then the selection may be for the breeding flock. Each group should be handled similarly while on range. Breeders should not be pushed for production until spring.

Flock segregation pays well and should be in more common practice.

FARMERS STUDY BETTER SEEDS AT STATE COLLEGE

The state college of agriculture at Ithaca was the gathering point on August 1 of hundreds of farmers intent on learning more about the production of the New York Seed Improvement Cooperative Association, but the visitors were not limited to members of that association. ed to members of that association

Potato growers in particular were ager to see the plots where samples eager to see the plots where samples of their own seed had been planted. They visited also the experimental plots where demonstrations were under way showing yield tests the effect of missing hills, effect of matcomparative tests of nearly 100 varieties.

For the grain growers there were the experimental plots where many varieties and strains of practically Profit for Farmer.

Segregating the flock, which means separating the hens according the approximate time they cease to lay, is advocated as good summer poultry management by the poultry workers.

After the separation has been made, the different groups should be put on range by themselves for the rest of their "vacation."

This practice, poultry men say, should result not only in keeping the egg yield at a uniform level thru the summer and fall, but also should retained for layers or breeders.

In segregating the hens, they should be transferred to other buildings, and, if possible, separated from the location of the laying flock, turned free on a good grass or alfalfa range, and fed plenty of hard grain. After being thus permitted to rest and recuperate for a period or six to eight weeks, they may be returned to the laying louse and sho kept the kitchen supplied with a useful grade of home made heep the kept them in a large earthenware crock, and at the end of each month is stowe, and when it was all melted stove, and when it was all melted dropped the pieces in to purify it; then she let the fat cook slowly until it stopped sputtering. Is the tractor in shape to do the fall plowing and fitting?

Uncle Ab says, it's a wise hen that knows her own eggs, but a trap-nest tells the poultryman every time.

A penny saved is a penny earned; follow the price movements when buying feed and make your plans in advance.

Remember that mosquitoes have to hatch in water before they can sting you. Empty out all the old tin cans and cover stagnant ponds with oil with oil.

Lightning rods poorly installed are worse than none at all. Be sure that the ground connections are at least eight feet deep, or down to permanent moisture.

Everyone knows that purebred animals pay; why not purebred seed? The state college of agriculture knows, and advises registered seed; use better wheat this fall.

Late blight is the most severe of all potato diseases, and the vines should be sprayed at least every two weeks as long as new foliage is being put out. Bulletin F 143 of the state college of agriculture at Ithaca is waiting for your name and address to tell you all about it.

The New York State Fair Commission has established a new precedent in setting aside a portion of the new coliseum, completed last fail for the national dairy show, for the live stock exhibits for the boys and girls in junior projects.

Calves, pigs, sheep and poultry will be exhibited in the big building at Syracuse and demonstration will be held there during the week of September 8-13. Twenty-two counties, according to Paul R. Young, assistant state club leader at Ithaca, are eligible to be represented by demonstration teams of obys and girls in agriculture and home making respectively.

The demonstration teams from the various counties will be selected by competition, to go to Syracuse to compete in the state wide contest at the fair. Winners will receive gold, silver and bronze medals The fair commission, says Mr. Young, is any other prize.
