CONCERNING SALLIE

Sallie is a modern, pretty young creature, with all the emotions and desires you yourself had when you were at that glorious age that lies somewhere between sixteen and twenty-five. Sallie is everywhere. The eyes of the world are upon the ultimate outcome of her moral code. Is she going to weaken her creed of right and wrong and stretch her philosophy to that of the girls who have a "good" time?

Your little girl is just where Sallie is. She must decide for herself. They are all Sallies at heart. Sallie's experience, put down truthfully from the pages of her life, may help your Sallies. Each chapter is complete in itself. Read it this week. You will enjoy it.—Editor.

"IN WHICH SHE IS PIQUED."

After the bop at Barances, I woke up early next mernint. The group of casement window that faced me were changed into one grest splotch of blue-like stained church-glass windows. Slipping into my negligee I ran over and looked out at the resurrection of the morning. It was the time of day when all little thirgs are stirring. I tould hear the first shy twittering of the birds in the tropical cleander trees that reached up to the window their tops all ending in clusters of shell pink blossoms. Leaning out I caught one in my fingers and the trig at its stem aroused its companion flowers who sent up a sea of fragrance and I drank in their sweetness.

It was chilly, my chiffon negligee was too thin for the early morning. I looked about for something with more warmth to put about my shoulders and seeing my evening cape on a chair where I had fung fia few hours earlier, I wrapped it around me snugly and settling down in the silken pillows of the window seat, resumed my dreaming. Everything out of doors was so fresh and lovely, the sparkling dewdrops making the blades of grass and trees resolendent. Suddenly I was conscious of an intruding odor—thet was the first star and a man in first many life I was jealous.
