CONCERNING SALLIE

Sallie is a modern, pretty young creature, with all the emotions and desires you yourself had when you were at that glorious age that lies somewhere between sixteen and twenty-five. Sallie is everywhere. The eyes of the world are upon the ultimate outcome of her moral code. Is she going to weaken her creed of right and wrong and stretch her philosophy to that of the girls who have a "good" time?

Your little girl is just where Sallie is. She must decide for herself. They are all Sallies at heart. Sallie's experience, put down truthfully from the pages of her life, may help your Sallies. Each chapter is complete in itself. Read it this week. You will enjoy it.—Editor.

Sallie Gives a Toast to the Younger Set

"Let's have a little game of stripped poker," Judith continued. "I saw the girls play it in a show on Broadway the other evening. Come on a great sport. I bet you're game, aren't you, Sallie?" she appealed to me, edging over to the table where I stood, regarding Warren Fisher's orchids which I was wearing.

"Right, O Judy!" I cheered her on. "I held you get them started!" I leaped to the table.

"Who wants to stay up all night 'til the teeny-weeny hours and play STRIPPED poker?" I challenged.

"Count me in."

"Now your talking!" and similar remarks of approval came from all parts of the room and then a cute little aviator in uniform fairly shouted:

"Suits me, I wanna win Sallie's little red heels!" remembering my dancing slippers.

"Shucks, I wanna win Sallie," declared Feter McMillan, "and have been tryin' to ever since I saw her in her cradle."

Peter was a dear and so faithful, as were they all. I took in the room at a glance. It was a jolly crowd. Everyone was in a good humor. A Victrola was playing a popular jazz song, "What'll I do When You Are Gone Away—What'll I do?" drawled by Elsie Baker.

"Aw, can the singin'! We'd rather hear Sallie. Give us a toast," and all eyes turned in my direction. Instantly the room was quiet. A compliment—from a crowd in high spirits. They liked me and I liked them. They were MY kind of people. We spoke the same language, and I could FEEL their approval. They depended on me to whoop things up for them, and by Jove, I wouldn't fail them. I'd help them have a good time. The kind of good time they wanted.

"A toast, Sallie!" they clamored. I raised my glass.

"I give you . . . The Younger Set!"

"We believe the one unpardonable sin is—being bored. 'We forgive anything in each other—except being stupid. 'We promise that whatever happens tonight, we will never speak of it, and also promise to forget everything in the morning."

"Bravo, Sallie! Encore!" There was a din of applause and then silence.

"Here's to Life, Love and Laughter," I continued. "Let us hereby dedicate our lives to pleasure."

HIGHLIGHTS ON STATE CROPS

From New York State Dept. Farms and Markets Oct. 28, 1924.

Grapes Heavy, Peaches About Finished

Grapes from New York, California and other states continue in abundant supply and prices for the black varieties on Tuesday showed a downward tendency, says the State Department of Farms & Markets. Buying was light. Western New York and Pennsylvania Concord sold principally at 80-85¢ per 12-quart basket. Michigan Concord brot 75-80¢. One carload of peaches, probably the season's last shipment from Western New York arrived Tuesday and met a very limited outlet at $1-1.25 per bushel basket. Barreled and basket apples are in liberal supply and are selling slowly. There is an active inquiry for large-sized Greenings and well-colored McIntoshes. Some "A" grade 2-1-2 inch Greenings on Tuesday realized as high as $6 per barrel, and McIntoshes as high as $9. The market has been steady for most varieties of fancy pears. No. 1 Anjou have lately sold at mostly $6 per barrel. Clairaueaux at $6-6.50. Fancy Bartlett have brot $2.50-2.75 per basket, Seckels $3-3.25.
