

PUTTING STEAM ON

JUST to plod along isn't enough now-a-days. There are too many fellows indifferent about getting anywhere. It's the fellow that puts the steam on that gets there. Start that bank account, and then keep steam up; it will not be long until you will be over the hill where the going will be much easier.

A bank book is ready for you here.

Rude Rural Rhymes

Hidden Trouble

"I fed my hens the whole darn batch, the very best of mash and scratch, but still they never seemed to lay at any time when eggs would pay. Their rations didn't even fat them; they were a total failure, drat them. I felt like that experienced bird of whose remarks you've likely heard. In spite of unproductive pens, he said "There's money in the hens," then added with a cheerful grin "I know there is—I put it in. It still is there beyond a doubt, for no one ever took it out." When I grew tired of feeding slackers, and buying choice grain with my smackers, I said, "Altho they seem in millions, in swarms, in bunches and in billions. They roosted on the roosts, those pests, they also nestled in the nests. No strange my poultry didn't pay when pestered thus both night and day. I ought to draw, before I'm thru, a moral as I often do. We're prone to think some other cuss a total loss compared to us, unmindful of the grief and pain that checks his heart, and dulls his brain, the worries that like parasites may sap his strength both days and nights. If we could once inspect his roost, we'd cease to knock and start to boost."

"There is but one Consideration—The Public Interest"

—HERBERT HOOVER

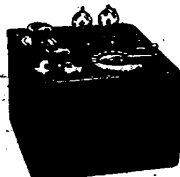

"We have today in America the widest tended and most efficient utility services the world. We have developed an effective method of controlling abuses. We contribute more to invention and improvement than all other peoples combined. We are asked to abandon all this and embrace new social ideas, increase our cost of service, decrease our national efficiency, undermine our democracy, destroy the fundamentals upon which our nation has become great. This is not progressive, for it is not progress. It is destruction."
