The hardest work in the world is pushing. It means working at top speed from dawn till dark, and usually in incense fumes. Lumberjacks live principally on heaps baked with potatoes and black (a kind of pakcage) eaten with maple sirup. They also eat quantities of steamed brown bread.

It is a mistake to think that a lot of meat is necessary to make muscle.
The spide, especially the Chinese, who lives on rice, is more active and enduring than the negro fed on meat; and the Arab, who lives largely on dates, is extraordinarily wiry and can travel all day in burning heat that would kill a meat-fed man.

Among the strongest men in the world are the Turkish porters. Two of these have been known to carry a grand piano up a flight of stairs, and one will carry a load of 100 pounds twenty miles in a day on his back.
These men live almost entirely on dried fruit and olives.

The Spanish peasant works all day and dances half the night on black bread, onions and occasionally a little cheese; while the Italian who is the best natvy in the world, does his work on an equally simple diet, of which the principal part is chestnut meal, onions and fruit.

Doctor Stefansson, the Canadian explorer, who has lived longer in the Arctic than any other white man, existed for months on nothing but fish.
All day he was out in temperature below zero, yet he has put it on record that during that time he actually gained weight.

The staple diet of the Roman soldier was coarse brown bread and sour wine, yet on this he built roads and carried incredible weights of armor and baggage over extraordinary distances.—London Tit-Bits.

TRICKS PLAYED WITH COIN

Various Methods Explained so That You Can Entertain Your Friends.

The trick of making a coin stick out a surface will greatly puzzle your friends when you perform the seeming magic for them.

Take a coin and, placing it flat against a door or some other smooth surface, rub it back and forth vigorously a dozen times or more. Take away your hand after repeating a mystic chant, and the coin will stay there. After a few moments it will drop. The explanation is that the rubbing of the coin on the smooth surface heats and drives the air out from under the coin, thus leaving the atmospheric pressure on the exposed face to hold it in place. After the coin has had time to cool, the air gets under it and it drops off. Be sure the coin you use has a good rim on it and the surface on which you put it is very smooth.

Another trick is performed with a bottle, a match, and the coin. Break the match stick so that the two parts hang together by only a few fibers of wood. Place it in a v-shape on the neck of the uncorked bottle, and then on the match lay the coin. Now ask your friends if they can make the coin fall into the bottle without touching the match, the coin or the bottle.
Various solutions will be tried, but the winning one is this:

Dip your finger in a glass of water, and placing it above the angle formed by the match, allow a few drops to fall in the broken place. The fibers of the wood, swollen by the moisture, will try to straighten themselves, and you will see the angle of the match increase little by little until it gradually works out from under the coin and the money drops into the bottle.

The Wise Bellboy.

Among the guests at a small hotel was a woman from a country district.
The landlord noticed every night that she came downstairs and got a pitcher of water. One night he asked her why she did not ring the bell for the bel-lboy to bring the water to her.

"No bell in your room, madam? Let me show you."

He took the pitcher of water in his hand and escorted her to her room.
Entering the apartment, he pointed out to her the knob of the electric bell. She gazed at it with wonder and then explained:

"Is that a bell? Why the bellboy told me that it was the fire-alarm signal, and that I must never touch it except in case of fire."

Inventor of Hose Supporter.

A little contribution to the history of women's garments: The origin of the garter—not the round kind, but the other variety. It was invented, for his personal use, by one of the most illustrious German philosophers, Kant, who had observed that the type of round elastic garter he had been using to hold up his silk stockings stopped the circulation of the blood. Kant got his brilliant mind to work, and finally evined a combination of elastic and stout harness attached at the top to his vest. Thus the hose supporter was born.

Something to Worry About.

"You look blue, old man."
"I am blue. I've been rejected."
"Oh, cheer up! There are plenty other girls, you know."
"Girls be hanged! It's an insurance company that has done the rejecting!"

Up to three weeks ago our store was practically bare of overcoats. We purposely held up in buying. Prices must come down we said and so we stood "pat." Every Overcoating loomed is represented, from the shaggy, fleecy, soft kinds to the smooth-surfaced hard-twisted kind. All Coats are durably and richly lined, well tailored and warrant- ed all wool. Every new model, single and double breasted box coats, ulsters, belted and half belted, plain great coats, town coats, country coats, all weather coats, in every new pattern and color of this season.
