OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

SHOULD CONTROL CHILD'S TANTRUMS

Do Not Allow Youngsters to Think He Can Have
His Own Way.

The interest in lectures by Dr. Nellie Perkins of the Michigan Psychopathic Clinic on child management problems at the recent annual extension conference held there indicates that this subject is due for more attention in educational circles. Dr. Perkins lectured in the Cornell University summer school and also spoke to the annual extension conference recently held at the state college of agriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

Dr. Perkins pointed out that before a child is six years old good training and environment can influence his personality to prevent much of the trouble, unhappiness and even crime that result from a lack of a sense of responsibility to others. Psychologists have proved this by studying the training of normal children in an attempt to unravel the causes for crime, mental disorders and social maladjustments among adults. These studies show that the pre-school age is the period when most can be done towards developing a successful personality and it is also the time when children are most easily understood.

The explanation of certain troublesome traits and characteristics of a child is often in the environment which surrounds the child during the first few years of its life rather than in its inheritance. Parents and relatives are therefore responsible for the future happiness and social relationships of the child. Violent dislikes and prejudices in children are often caused by mismanagement on the part of adults.

Every child is entitled to just one temper tantrum, Dr. Perkins stated, but if there is more than one something is wrong in the home. If a child is allowed to realize that a fit of temper will get him what he wants, he naturally makes use of his opportunities. Children are mirrors of the conduct about them. When the parents are tired and disgruntled, the children respond in the same way.

Such things as fears and marked apprehension are often the results of false threats. Children take things literally and a grown person's thoughtless remark may be taken seriously by a youngster and cause a real mental disturbance in the child, affecting him for life.

EASY TO MAKE CANDY WITH SIMPLE RECIPE

Many Kinds of Sweets May Be Fashioned With Readily Prepared
Fondant as Base.

The easy way to prepare last minute Christmas candies according to the specialists at the state college of agriculture is to make up a "batch" of plain fondant a week or two before Christmas. The fondant is a smooth, rich creamy sweet from which bon bons, tutti frutti, chocolate creams, mints and stuffed fruits may be made.

The recipe for fondant is given here: Two cups sugar, 2-3 cup water, 1 tablespoon corn syrup, or 1-8 teaspoon cream of tartar.

Put the sugar and water in a saucepan, set over the fire and stir until sugar is dissolved. As soon as the syrup boils, add the corn syrup or cream of tartar. Boil slowly until the thermometer registers 240 degrees F. While cooking keep the cover on part of the time so the steam can help to keep crystals washed down.

Remove from the fire at once, let stand about five minutes, then pour on large platters or slabs which have been made wet with water. Set in a cool place and as soon as it forms a skin-like layer which does not break thru when tested with the finger, begin to cream it with a wooden spoon. Cream thoroughly and knead until smooth and free from lumps. Fondant is better if allowed to ripen at least one hour (several days is better). It may be covered with a damp cloth and put away in a cool place.

Directions for making ten candies from this one recipe may be obtained from the state college of agriculture at Ithaca.

LANTERN SLIDES WITH LECTURES FROM ITHACA

Offered Free by State College of Agriculture for Use at Meetings
Where Desired.

A new announcement of free lantern slide service was recently issued by the state college of agriculture at Ithaca, listing altogether 68 series. County agent H. G. Becker from list below, has a copy of this announcement, as have also all high school teachers of agriculture in New York State.

The studies range all the way from descriptions of the Cornell University campus and work of the state college of agriculture to more specialized topics, such as discussions in plant diseases, fruit culture, reforestation, poultry illumination and cover, practically all the subjects taught at the college. The only cost connected with the use of these slides and accompanying lecture notes is the return postage and the responsibility for any breakage. Interested persons may see the announcement at County Agent H. G. Becker's office, or get a copy for themselves by writing to the state college of agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

BAKED POTATOES

Food specialists agree that the potato baked with its skin on is much more valuable than the pared and boiled potato. Since this plentiful home grown vegetable has a valuable amount of the minerals most important to the body—iron, lime and phosphorus, as well as of the third vitamin, why pour these desirable materials down the kitchen sink when they may be saved by baking?

At the state college of agriculture the foods instructors wash and scrub the potatoes thoroughly and bake them from forty-five minutes to an hour in a hot oven (400 to 450 degrees F.) Be sure to have the oven hot before the potatoes are put in. To test the potatoes do not pierce them with a fork, but squeeze them with the hand wrapped in a towel. When soft, break the skin to keep them from being soggy and serve. If desired, a bit of butter and a dash of paprika may be placed in the opening made in the potato.
