Numerous examples might be cited. One at hand suppose, after reading the introduction to the series articles, that the Better Health Bureau was a regular Rockefeller foundation devoted to the cause better health for humanity's sake-an elemosynary institution dedicated to the noble purpose of prolonging life and making living more enjoyable.

"These news stories and filler paragraphs are offered you free of charge," says the generous press agent on the pamphlet, "in the interest of promoting greater knowledge of food facts among housewives." Charitable, indeed, and self-effacing organization that wants to do some good in the world.

"Brain Balance Maintained by Hearty Laughs," is the heading on the first article. And here this splendid advice: "Hearty laughter and good humor aid digestion and help to maintain the balance of the brain, according to scientists. There can be no lasting despondency, they say, where there is gayety. As a factor in maintaining the Romans recognized good humor as an aid way back in 593 B. C., when the plague was lravishing the Roman population."

Then comes a bit of history and follows: "Laughter causes the digestive organs to function freely and harpens the appetite." And now for the loker: "Na-1 in the manner of sports, as well as in other things turally, the quality of the food the housewife sets on in the life of the American people. Sometimes it is clear weather and sometimes stormy. As in the case of the winds, of which we know not whence they come nor whither they go, but take their blowing as an act of God beyond our control, so our Bible school following the church moods and tempers seem to arise we know not how.

The best we can do is to maintain our poise as much as possible and turn toward our ideals when the winds of pessimism and doubt are upon us, and remain as equable as we can.

We speak of getting out of bed in the morning with the wrong foot foremost. It is another way of saying that we are in the grip of a mood that is beyond our control.
