TT begins to rain in your town. Lights are lighted. More power is needed. At Niagara Falls a switch is thrown. Niagara Power is diverted from cities where it is not needed, into your town where it is most needed.

Thus throughout the Buffalo, Niagara and Eastern Power System, the expense of generating equipment is kept at a minimum. Through interconnected power plants, Niagara Power Service is routed back and forth, without waste and at a saving of thousands of tons of coal.

That is one way in which the interconnected power plants of the Buffalo, Niagara and Eastern System helps keep your electricity bills so low.
